Push For Lunar New Year School Holiday

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Public Schools may close in observance of Lunar New Year next school year following a push have the day recognized as a school holiday.

During the School Committee meeting on April 5, five residents — three students and two adults — spoke out in favor of recognizing Lunar New Year as a holiday moving forward. Those students also said more than 500 people have signed a petition urging the school board to recognize the holiday.

Angela Chen, the president of Asian Culture Club at North Quincy High School, said it is "mind boggling" that the district does not take a day off for Lunar New Year given that more

Keenan Optimistic About New MBTA GM

By SCOTT JACKSON

Sen. John Keenan is optimistic the new general manager of the MBTA will be able to right the ship at the beleaguered transit agency, but doing so could take time.

Phillip Eng officially took over as the general manager of the MBTA on April 10. Gov. Maura Healey announced Eng's hiring in March at the conclusion of a months-long search.

Eng comes to Massachusetts with more than 40 years of experience in New York. He served as the president of the MTA's Long Island Rail Road, the nation's busiest community rail system, from 2018 and 2022. Eng began his career in the New York State Department of Transportation and served as the chief operating officer of the MTA prior to running the LIRR.

7-Story Quincy Center Building Unveiled

By SCOTT JACKSON

A local restaurateur has unveiled plans to construct a new seven-story building with two floors of restaurant space and 43 apartments on Hancock Street, the latest step in the effort to redevelop Quincy Center.

Joey Arcari, president of the Broadway Hospitality Group, pitched his proposal for the seven-story building to the Planning Board April 12. The board could approve the project as soon as its next meeting on May 10.

Arcari is proposing to construct the new building at 1445 Hancock St., which was home to Family Dollar before it closed in recent months. That property is next to two other buildings — 1455 and 1465 Hancock St. — which the city plans to

QNQ Track Record Boards Unveiled At Faxon Field Track

During a recent ceremony at the Faxon Field track two new track and field record boards were unveiled and dedicated at the Quirk Field House.

The record boards were dedicated during a brief ceremony in front of a large crowd prior to the QNQ vs. Pembroke track meet. The boards represent school records set and individual state champions while the Quincy and North Quincy High School track teams have been combined for the spring outdoor track and field seasons since 2016.

The brief ceremony included city officials, athletes, parents and coaches. Those in attendance included school committee member Paul Bregoli, Project Director for the Division of Natural Resources and former North Quincy track and field standout Paul "Doc" Doherty, Athletic Director Kevin Mahoney and North Quincy High School Principal Dan Gilbert. Team captains removed the veils which covered the record boards until the ceremony. Team captains included Jacey Ham, Alex Stankov, Oisin Coogan-Coyne and Gabe Rodrigues for boys, Aluna Coogan-Coyne, Salma Boukhtam and Sofija Slezas for girls.

Head track and field coach Geoff Hennessy acknowledged that since combining the Quincy and North Quincy track programs, the teams have experienced exponential growth and unparalleled success in recent seasons, which has included winning multiple indoor and outdoor boys' and girls' Patriot League titles.

Hennessy also thanked long-time QNQ assistant coach Ally Sleiman and Parks Department Commissioner David Murphy who were both instrumental in the design and construction of the record boards.

Wollaston Church Eyeing New Building

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Wollaston church is seeking approval to construct a new five-story building that would include a sanctuary and chapel, space for education and activities, and three residential units.

The Wollaston Lutheran Church on April 12 went before the Planning Board with its proposal for the new building at 552 Hancock St. and 8 Ellington Rd., which are currently the home to the church and its parsonage, respectively. The board did not vote on the proposal that evening and will take up the matter again on June 14.

The present church on site was built in the 1930s and is not handicap accessible, said the Rev. Dr. Adolph Wismar, Jr., the church's pastor emeritus. That can be problematic, he said, as the church hosts a senior center for the area's Asian American residents.

"We're very anxious to improve our facilities now so that we can minister to the people who live in Quincy for the next coming century," Wismar said. "At this point we're not planning to offer any new programs that would bring in an extra crowd of people, but simply offer the programs that we are offering in a more fitting environment."

The church would have to find a temporary home for the year or so it would take to build the new building, Wismar added. He was optimistic it would be able to do so.

The first floor of the new building would house the church's sanctuary, a meeting room, a gathering area, and a six-car garage accessible from Ellington Road. The sanctuary would have seating for 148 people, including the choir. Jim Ed-

Free Community Healthcare Worker Training Program At Quincy College

Quincy College has launched a new Community Healthcare Worker program that will educate and train students — free of charge — for in-demand careers within the fast-growing healthcare/human services field.

The program has been made possible through a $166,000 workforce development grant awarded to the College by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Health and Human Services.

Community Healthcare Workers serve as advocates for members of underserved populations who are seeking to access the healthcare system. They also work to improve individual and community health through awareness and outreach. These specialists are employed in various healthcare settings including hospitals, outpatient clinics, community health centers, social service agencies and in home care, and demonstrate broad knowledge of healthcare and social service systems as well as cultural competencies while also engaging in health prevention and wellness promotion activities.

The job outlook for program graduates is strong as overall employment in the field is projected to grow at a faster rate than the average for all occupations. Those who are bilingual or multilingual are in particular demand.

Enrollment is underway for the eight-week program, which will be offered evenings from May 15-July 28. The curriculum will be presented entirely online and consists of 60 classroom hours and 20 clinical hours.

"Our departmental mission is to identify, develop and implement new training programs that match the needs of our students with those of our regional workforce," said Kate Lopci, Quincy College's Vice President of Workforce, Economic and Institutional Development. "This program is just the latest example of giving students an opportunity to follow an educational pathway to a rewarding career in a field where employers are anxious to hire."

For information about the Community Healthcare Worker program or to enroll, contact Janet Pearson at jpearson@quincycollege.edu or call (617) 984-1752.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On May 6, 1527, the Renaissance ended with the Sack of Rome by German troops as part of an ongoing conflict between the Habsburg Empire and the French Monarchy. German troops killed over 4,000 Romans, imprisoned the pope, and looted works of art and libraries. An entire year passed before order was restored.

• On May 1, 1830, Irish-born American labor leader Mary "Mother" Jones was born in County Cork, Ireland. After losing her husband and four children in the yellow fever epidemic of 1867 and all her belongings in the Chicago Fire of 1871, she devoted herself to organizing and advancing the cause of labor, delivering her last speech on her 100th birthday.

• On May 5, 1865, Decoration Day was first observed in the U.S., with the tradition of decorating Civil War soldiers' graves with flowers. Later the date was moved to May 30 and included American graves from the first and second World Wars, eventually becoming better known as Memorial Day.

• On May 3, 1939, The Andrews Sisters recorded "Beer Barrel Polka," aka "Roll Out the Barrel." The song became a popular standard during World War II and later the signature tune of flamboyant singer/pianist Liberace.

• On May 4, 1987, the U.S. House and Senate Committee began three months of hearings into the Iran-Contra affair, which involved the secret sale of American arms to Iran with some of the proceeds going to Contra rebels seeking to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

• On May 7, 2001, Ronnie Biggs, one of the "Great Train Robbers" who managed to elude capture and settled in Brazil following his prison escape on July 8, 1965, returned voluntarily to Britain, where he was jailed to complete the remaining 28 years of his sentence. He was released in 2009, two days before his 80th birthday, on "compassionate grounds" and died four years later in a nursing home.

• On May 2, 2011, U.S. Special Operations Forces killed Osama bin Laden during a raid on his secret compound in Abbottabad, Pakistan, ending a 10-year manhunt for the leader of the al-Qaida terrorist organization and coordinator of the attacks on the World Trade Center in 2001.

Dogwood trees

The dogwood has graceful blossoms and distinctive bark, and also attracts wildlife. Silk moths and several species of butterflies favor dogwoods as hosts. The flowers provide nectar to many pollinating insects. American robins, northern mockingbirds and sparrows will build nests on its horizontal branches. Many birds eat its berries, including cardinals, titmice, bluebirds, juncos and waxwings. - Brenda Weaver

Quincy Rotary Club, Woodward School Aid Earthquake Victims In Turkey, Syria Raise Funds And Collect Blankets, Sleeping Bags

In a joint international relief effort with high school seniors at The Woodward School, the Rotary Club of Quincy helped collect a wide range of relief items to provide immediate aid to the victims of the recent earthquakes in Turkey and Syria.

Tens of thousands of people were killed, thousands of homes and other structures destroyed, and people across the region are still without shelter in bitterly cold weather.

The Woodward School students, with help from Boston Lawyer and Turkish Citizen Baran Bildirici, reached into the community for help and have sent truckloads and a school bus full of needed supplies to the Turkish Consulate. Quincy Rotary members joined in this effort to support donation drop-offs of sleeping bags; blankets; personal care items for women; and cash to support the initiative.

Quincy Rotary also quickly mobilized to raise funds to purchase 10 cases of fleece rescue & relief blankets from a local small business (Northeast Fleece) in Fall River (which, in turn, donated two additional cases). A total of 360 blankets were delivered to the Turkish Consulate in Boston and loaded on a Turkish Airlines flight to Istanbul. Rotary's project partner ShelterBox's team is in Turkey, collaborating closely with Rotary district leaders to respond and provide people affected by the earthquake with tents and essential aid items they need.

This joint outreach also attracted support from other organizations in Quincy, such as Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI). Over $20,000 of donations were collected and sent directly to the earthquake epicenter to support the people most affected by the disaster.

On Sunday, April 30, from 2 to 6 p.m., enjoy Turkish Music and Cuisine night for a great cause to raise money for Earthquake Relief at The Woodward School for Girls in downtown Quincy, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy. Enjoy live music and delicious Turkish Food. Tickets for this event are $50, and all proceeds will be donated to support earthquake survivors. To register for the event, go to:

Green Up The Blue Hills April 30

The public is invited to join the Friends of the Blue Hills for a spring festival of stewardship and fun. Green-Up the Blue Hills will be held on Sunday, April 30, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Ponkapoag AMC Cabins.

Volunteers will help protect the forest by pulling invasive plants that threaten local species. But it won't be all work and no play. Participants and their families will also enjoy live music, a scavenger hunt, face-painting and crafts.

For most visitors to the 7,000-acre Blue Hills Reservation, many plants look alike, yet many of the plants are not native and degrade wildlife habitat. Participants in Green Up the Blue Hills will help protect native wildlife and plants by pulling the invasive plant, garlic mustard. The plant is easy to identify and remove, and volunteers' efforts will greatly improve the habitat for local wildlife.

Volunteers can park at Temple Beth David, 1060 Randolph St. in Canton, and walk the ¾ miles to the cabins. The event is rain or shine, and while some gloves will be available for weeding, volunteers are encouraged to bring their own gardening gloves if they have them. Register for the event at friendsofthebluehills.org/greenup2023. If you have questions, email info@friendsofthebluehills.org.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS REAL PHOTO POSTCARD is a 1924 view of Willow Street in Wollaston looking north from Elm Avenue. Electric trolleys ran along Elm Avenue connecting to Norfolk Downs via Billings Road. The tracks are visible in the unpaved street. Some of these houses appear different today; porches and other trim have decayed over the years and have been removed or replaced. In the 1920s, Henry Frink, a Quincy photographer, took dozens of pictures of neighborhoods like this one and sold many of them as postcards, but they are hard to find today.

City Looking Into Punch Card Voting

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John M. Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little a $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It is about time," said Gillis, who was up until 4 a.m. with the Presidential Primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvements in voting procedures."

Brian Crawley, vice-president of Electronic Voting Machines, Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each, and the unit with a stand and light cost $300 each.

Gillis said that he would make a pitch for them at the next city council meeting.

WILLARD SCHOOL SOLD FOR $916,500

The city closed a deal for the sale of the old Willard School in West Quincy to Furnace Brook Associates for $916,500 for conversion into an office building. Conversion is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984.

Furnace Brook Associates is made up of Dickinson Development and Grossman and Company, both of Braintree.

The old school will be converted into between 40,000 and 45,000 square feet of rental office space.

Movie Review: 'The Super Mario Bros. Movie'

By BOB GARVER

In my review of "Dungeons & Dragons: Honor Among Thieves" I wrote that I wasn't really familiar with the "Dungeons & Dragons" game, and that may have affected my enjoyment of the movie. There will be no such disclaimer for "The Super Mario Bros. Movie." My brother and I were introduced to video games through "Super Mario Bros." and "Donkey Kong Country." I even tried playing the games myself sometimes, in between watching my brother play and actually win. So, while I'm not saying that I picked up on every Nintendo Easter Egg in this movie, there wasn't much that caught me off-guard. And that's kind of the problem, nothing here surprised me.

Brothers Mario (Chris Pratt) and Luigi (Charlie Day) aren't having much luck with their plumbing business in Brooklyn, but their fortunes could change if they can stop a massive flood. They follow the sewer system to a mysterious pipe, which they enter, only to be whisked away to the world of the Mushroom Kingdom, where they get split up. On top of being lost, stranded, and separated from his brother, Mario is trapped in a world that centers around his least-favorite pizza topping.

Mario makes fast friends with scrappy Mushroom Kingdom resident Toad (Keegan-Michael Key), who suggests they go to get help from Princess Peach (Anya Taylor-Joy). She's dealing with a problem of her own: an impending invasion by the evil Bowser (Jack Black) and his army of Koopas. Bowser has taken Luigi hostage, so Mario and Peach have a shared interest in his defeat. Mario and Toad accompany Peach on a mission to recruit the Kong army to combat the Koopas. King Cranky Kong (Fred Armisen) agrees to loan Peach his army if Mario can defeat his son Donkey Kong (Seth Rogen) in an arena battle. An alliance is soon formed, but Bowser isn't far off.

Bowser, for his part, is probably the funniest character in the movie, thanks to three words: Jack Black singing. He has a diabolical plan to marry Peach, which he plans to do by force, but he also wants to do it the right way, with romance and attentiveness. "Adventure Time" had a storyline like this, and arguably, so did "Beauty and the Beast." But this is the first one to throw in a Jack Black piano ballad.

Black's performance is one of the few memorable things about this movie, the rest is pretty much disposable. Every time the movie gives us a funny joke or action beat, a lame one will come along to even it out, and vice versa. Very little falls above (or below, to be fair) the level of "middling." I'll say this: it was a good idea to make this movie animated. You just don't get this brand of bright colors and bouncy movements in real life. Plus, I've seen portions of the yucky 1993 live-action movie. I haven't seen it all the way through, but I think it's safe to say that this is better.

By the time you read this, "The Super Mario Bros. Movie" will probably be the #1 movie of the year at the domestic box office, after a killer opening over Easter weekend. I'm glad that something is taking down the MCU mush that was "Ant-Man and the Wasp:

Quantummania," especially given the whole MODOK fiasco. But I'd also like to see this movie taken down by something that I can actually recommend. This movie comes close to breaking the streak of the world never getting a single decent video game movie, it really does, but the jokes and action, not to mention some stiff voice performances (Taylor-Joy could have used a few more takes, so could Black when he's delivering straight lines) just barely make this movie an underwater level.

Grade: C

"The Super Mario Bros. Movie" is rated PG for action and mild violence. Its running time is 92 minutes.

Pork Loin With Cabbage

By MARIE

I recently found today's recipe for pork loin with cabbage. It is both simple and savory and with the combination of pork loin and cabbage was so delicious and easy to make with only a couple of ingredients.

This recipe includes two of my favorite ingredients which I use quite a bit because I find them to always be on hand and easy to use adding delicious flavors. Those two ingredients are soy sauce and real sherry wine. Try this recipe – you won't be disappointed!

Ingredients and Directions:

- 1 head of cabbage, sliced
- 2 cloves of garlic, chopped
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 pork loin - 1 to 3 pounds depending on what you need
- ¼ low sodium soy sauce (optional)

- ¼ cup sherry wine (the kind you drink - optional)
- 3 tablespoons of olive oil
- Salt and pepper to taste

In hot oil in a skillet sauté the half of the garlic and chopped onion. (Reserve the other half of garlic and onion to sauté the meat.)

Then add the cabbage to the skillet and cover.

Stir these ingredients sporadically until cabbage is done and then set aside.

Cut the pork loin into 1-inch pieces and in another skillet, in the hot oil, sauté the rest of the garlic and onion and pork loin until done.

Plate the entrée on a platter by first placing the cabbage on the platter and then the pork loin on top of the cabbage.

Serve with any favorite sides or crispy, artisan bread.

Healthy Cream Of Broccoli Soup

By SUZIE

Here is a delicious and healthy version of cream of broccoli soup. Cream of broccoli soup usually has cream or milk and flour to thicken.

My soup uses cream made of cashews which is not only delicious, but much easier to digest, loaded with nutrition and very versatile since it can be used as a substitute for dairy. Many (if not most) people have a hard time digesting dairy and there is no reason to consume much of it anyway from a nutritional standpoint. We are able to get important nutrients for our bones including but not limited to calcium from many foods. Enjoy this healthy and delicious version!

2 bags frozen broccoli florets (normally 10 oz. per bag, or about six cups fresh broccoli)

- 3 cloves minced garlic
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 5 cups broth (I used vegetable)
- 3 tablespoons butter, coconut oil, or olive oil

- *1 cup cashew cream
- Sea salt and pepper

*Cashew Cream:

Place 1 cup of raw cashews rinsed and drained in bowl.

Boil 3 cups of water and pour over cashews and let soak for 30 minutes.

Drain but reserve ¾ cup of the soaking water and place in blender with the cashews. Process until smooth and creamy, much like Greek yogurt.

Saute' onion and garlic in oil of choice until fragrant.

Simply add broth, seasonings, and broccoli and bring to boil.

Cover and simmer until just tender and still bright green.

Uncover and spoon in cashew cream. Use immersion blender and blend until all pureed.

Adjust seasonings and serve hot.

If you do not have an immersion blender you can put in a blender after cooled.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: What Can I Earn In My First Year Collecting Social Security?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My 62nd birthday is in late August of this year. I would like to start collecting Social Security, but after reading about the need to keep my earnings less than $21,240 in the first year it doesn't seem fair to those who have birthdays later in the year. I will have earned a lot by the end of August. Or am I missing the part where the year starts from the day you retire? Or is it a fiscal year? Please elaborate? Signed: Looking Ahead

Dear Looking Ahead: Born in late August, your first month of eligibility for Social Security will be September (you must be 62 for an entire month to be eligible for SS benefits). If you start your benefits in September, for the months of September through December 2023 you'll have a monthly earnings limit of $1,770. If you exceed that limit in any of those 4 months, you won't be eligible for SS benefits in any month that the $1770 monthly limit is exceeded. If you exceed the monthly limit in all of those months, you won't be entitled to any benefits in 2023, unless using the annual earnings limit formula to determine your penalty would result in a lesser amount.

The penalty for exceeding the annual limit is $1 for every $2 you are over the 2023 limit and, if using that formula yields a penalty which is less than for exceeding the 2023 monthly limit for September - December, they will use the annual limit instead of the monthly limit to compute your penalty. Thus, your annual earnings earned before September will only count if using the annual limit will result in less of a penalty than using the monthly limit for the months after your benefits start. If you plan to retire from working before September, then there will be no penalty for exceeding the annual earnings limit prior to that, but if you continue to work full time there will likely be a penalty which will cause Social Security to take away some of your benefits.

Starting in 2024, only the annual earnings limit (which will be a bit more than the 2023 annual limit) will apply to you. Generally, if you continue working full time and will significantly exceed the annual earnings limit, it may be wise to reconsider claiming your Social Security until your income is below or closer to the annual limit each year, or until you reach your full retirement age after which the earnings limit no longer applies. And if you do claim early and exceed the earnings limit, and if you have benefits taken away for some number of months to satisfy the penalty, you'll get time-credit for those months after you reach your full retirement age. That credit will, essentially, move your claim date forward by the number of months you didn't get SS benefits, increasing your benefit amount accordingly after your full retirement age.

AG, C-Mart Reach $800K Settlement

Attorney General Andrea Joy Campbell's office has secured $800,000 in restitution and penalties from the owners of three C-Mart, supermarket stores, which specialize in Asian cuisine and are located in Boston's South End and Chinatown neighborhoods and in Quincy, for violations of state labor laws including failure to pay overtime and premium pay to its workers.

The C-Mart stores, along with their respective corporate presidents, Maio Kun Fang, Bao Song Qu, and Quxiang Lin, were issued 15 citations in 2021. The citations were the result of an investigation in which the AG's Fair Labor Division concluded that C-Mart stores failed to furnish true and accurate payroll records, failed to post required workplace notices, including earned sick time posters, and did not properly pay workers for overtime hours or for hours worked on Sundays. The AG's Office reached this settlement with C-Mart for $800,000 following an appeal from the company and its owners over the 2021 citations.

Most employees in Massachusetts are entitled to time-and-a-half pay when working more than 40 hours a week. During the time period investigated, most retail employees were also entitled to premium pay for time worked on Sundays.

"I am proud of the office's work to ensure that the workers harmed by C-Mart will get back the wages they are rightfully owed," said AG Campbell. "My office, and particularly our Fair Labor Division, will continue to hold employers accountable for wage theft and violation of our wage and hour laws."

"The Chinese Progressive Association applauds Attorney General Campbell and her team for winning this significant settlement and her commitment to end wage theft. We are committed to work with the Office of Attorney General to ensure every worker entitled to back wages will be compensated. We encourage workers to contact the Chinese Progressive Association for help with this claim and any other workplace issues. We also hope to use this opportunity to help more workers learn about their rights and stand up for their rights," said Fiona Yu, Chinese Progressive Association Worker Center coordinator.

"Thank you to Attorney General Campbell for pursuing this case and addressing these serious labor law violations," said Quincy state representative Tackey Chan. "No worker should be cheated out of wages they have earned. I strongly encourage anyone who qualifies for this settlement to submit a form to the AG's office."

The AG's Office will be distributing money to affected C-Mart employees through a claims process. Between now and July, individuals who worked for C-Mart's Boston and Quincy stores between November 2016 and November 2019 may submit a form, which is available in both English and Chinese, to the AG's Office. Workers must submit a completed form by July 6 to be eligible to receive a share of the wages collected through the settlement.

The AG's Office works with community partners, law schools, and private bar attorneys to host free monthly wage theft clinics at Suffolk Law School in Boston. These clinics are part of an effort to address wage theft and worker exploitation among vulnerable populations, including low-wage and immigrant workers.

Workers who believe that their rights have been violated in their workplace are encouraged to file a complaint at www.mass.gov/ago/fld. For information about the state's wage and hour laws, workers may call the AG's Fair Labor Hotline at (617) 727-3465 or visit the website for materials in 12 languages, including Spanish, Portuguese, Haitian Creole, and Chinese.

This matter was handled by Investigator Lili Wu and Assistant Attorney General Kate Watkins of AG Campbell's Fair Labor Division.

Stephanya Mendes Participates In Civil Rights Pilgrimage To Alabama, Georgia

Stephanya Mendes of Quincy, a member of the Class of 2025 at Regis College in Weston, spent spring break on a Civil Rights Pilgrimage to Birmingham, Montgomery, and Selma, Alabama, and Atlanta, Georgia, cities important in the Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s.

On this trip, Regis students immersed themselves in the history of the Civil Rights Movement and explored the important anti-racism and civil rights work being done today.

"This trip was a transformational experience for everyone. At a time when the nation continues to experience violence, racism and poverty, the importance of this pilgrimage cannot be underestimated. Students learned how a social movement built on peace, faith and courage transformed the country. They were able to witness how being an upstander, a foot soldier for social justice leads to inclusivity and equity. The students are now better prepared for the struggle and work to serve dear neighbors without distinction," said Madeleine Lopez, director, Center for Inclusive Excellence and a staff leader of the service trip.

Good Deeds: Community Preservation Act

By WILLIAM P.
O'DONNELL
Norfolk County
Register of Deeds

Dear Friends of the Registry, Registry Stakeholders, and Norfolk County Residents, I wanted to take a moment and share with you some history and information about the Community Preservation Act that I think you might find interesting.

The Community Preservation Act (CPA) is the result of more than two decades of work to create legislation that would provide all 351 Massachusetts cities and towns with a tool to preserve their most unique natural, community, and physical infrastructures in the face of rapid expansion and development.

The CPA allows cities and towns to establish a Community Preservation Fund to preserve open space, historic preservation, affordable housing, and outdoor recreation. The CPA also creates a statewide Community Preservation Trust Fund, which is managed by the Department of Revenue (DOR) and makes annual contributions to municipalities that have signed on to the CPA.

The Community Preservation Act was signed into law on September 14, 2000. Today, there are 194 Massachusetts communities that have adopted this act. Of the 28 communities that make up Norfolk County, 19 communities have adopted the law.

As of December 31, 2019, fees collected for the Community Preservation Act were increased to $50 for most land documents recorded and $25 for municipal lien certificates. The Registry of Deeds, at no additional cost to the Commonwealth or local communities, collects these revenues once a land document is recorded and forwards the monies to the Massachusetts Department of Revenue on a monthly basis. The funds forwarded to the Commonwealth are then redistributed back to the communities that have adopted the Community Preservation Act.

The fees for the CPA are set by the State Legislature on land documents recorded here at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. The chart at right provides an illustration of the funds generated by the CPA in your community based on recorded real estate filings for that community during the 2022 calendar year.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, which is located at 649 High Street, Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, genealogists, municipalities, and others with a need for secure, accurate, and accessible land record information. For assistance, call the Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101, or visit the website at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Push For Lunar New Year School Holiday

than half the students at North are of Asian descent.

"As an Asian American student attending North Quincy High School where the student body consists of 55 percent Asians, not having Lunar New Year off is simply mind boggling to me," she said.

"To the Chinese and other Asian American populations, Lunar New Year is a very, if not the most important, holiday in our cultures. This is why recognizing Lunar New Year as an official city holiday is a must."

Jasmine Chen, a junior

at North, said that 40 percent of all students district-wide are of Asian descent. She said the school board should make the Monday following Lunar New Year a school holiday because many students will not be in the classroom that day.

"Lunar New Year is a major holiday celebrated in many East Asian countries including China, Taiwan, Vietnam, Singapore and South Korea. Today, Lunar New Year is a special time to bring friends and family together for feasting and lively festivities to carry on the legacy that immigrants of Asian descent have fortunately carried to the US and various parts of the world," she said.

"Depending on the custom of the region, this holiday can last for as long as 14 days. While in the US we do not have such a luxury, many Asian American students and staff members typically would take a single day off on Lunar New Year day.

"The next Lunar New Year will be on Saturday, Feb. 10, 2024, and we anticipate that many students and even staff members will take the day off. With nearly half the schools' student body off, teachers may not want to teach new materials on this day, or they may need to plan on teaching the same lessons twice. A day off would allow a favorable compromise on behalf of both the students and the staff."

"Recognizing Lunar New Year as a district holiday," she added, "depicts the fact that QPS as a city acknowledges diversity and embraces of inclusion of the Asian American students and their families."

Susan Chinsen, who has two children at Atlantic

Middle School, said several communities in Massachusetts already recognize Lunar New Year as a school holiday.

"With the growing number of the Asian-American community here in Quincy, we really hope you would also consider [having] the day off following other cities in Massachusetts including Hopkinton, Wayland, Brookline and Boston," Chinsen said.

Many parents in the community also favor making Lunar New Year a school holiday, Chinsen added.

"I hope as elected officials yourselves you will consider all of these aspects," she said. "There are a number of other parents who are also interested in getting this passed and perhaps if you pass this sooner than later, it will save us from more work we have to do."

The school board's policy subcommittee on March 29 approved a calendar for the 2023-24 school year that did not include a day off in observance of Lunar New Year. Following the public comments at the April 5 committee meeting, the calendar was referred back to subcommittee where it could be amended.

7-Story Quincy Center Building Unveiled

raze in the coming months to make way for a park. A separate development is also in the pipeline for 1469 Hancock St., currently the Adams Arcade building, which would be built by a different developer.

Arcari, whose company owns 20 restaurants throughout the region, including the Tavern in the Square chain, told the Planning Board he sees himself as a restaurateur first and a developer second. He said the new restaurant would be the most important part of the development at 1445 Hancock St.

"The really important component, I feel, for this project, especially now with the mayor's new park being built next door, is the restaurant piece. We're going to build a real flagship-type restaurant, two stories," Arcari said.

"As you can see from this rendering, this is really what we want this street to look like when this project is done. Lots of people mulling around. We're going to set the building back eight feet from Hancock and then, along with the mayor's park, I think this is really going to be an awesome area."

Arcari said he was honored to be part of the new Quincy Center.

"A lot of people ask, 'why Quincy?' and I find that a stupid question," he said. "I tell them 'of course Quincy.' You just have to drive through the center here, you see all the development going on. You've got an incredible mayor, Mayor Koch, who is really driving all this new development stuff. I'm just honored to be part of it."

The new building's facade will be comprised of glass, stone and masonry, according to Nick Ruggeri, an architect with the firm RODE Architects.

"We're envisioning a bold, timeless architecture, well-crafted, that makes use of predominantly masonry, stone, metal and glass to create a forward-looking design for the center of Quincy," he said.

The new restaurant would occupy the majority of the ground floor of the building, Ruggeri stated. The ground floor would also include two lobbies for the apartments above, one on the Hancock Street side and the other on the McConville Way side. The loading zone and trash room would be on the McConville Way side of the building, as would the entrance to a garage under the building.

The second floor of the building would include both restaurant space and apartments, Ruggeri said, with more units on floors three through seven. Roughly half of the 43 units would include two bedrooms and the other half would have one bedroom.

The project is subject to the city's affordable housing requirements, said David Mahoney, the applicant's attorney. It remains to be determined whether the developer provides affordable housing units on site or if he makes a payment to the affordable housing trust fund in lieu of the on-site units.

There would be seating for outdoor dining in front of the building along Hancock Street, within a portion of the city-owned civic space next door at 1455 Hancock St., and on a deck located within the second floor of the building. The top of the building would include a roof deck for the building's residents.

The developer plans tap into utility lines located under McConville Way, said Olivia von den Benken, senior project manager with Granite City Partners. Those lines had been rebuilt in 2021 in anticipation of development in the area.

The garage under the building would include space for 18 vehicles, all of which would be assigned to residents of the building. As part of an urban renewal covenant signed by the developer and the city, the developer has agreed to lease additional parking spaces from the city, according to Rob Stevens, the city's deputy planning director. Those spaces could be located in the city-owned Kilroy Square garage, a new garage planned in the vicinity of the Parkingway, or in surface lots in the area.

Stevens also noted the city plans to tear down the buildings it owns at 1455 and 1465 Hancock St. in the coming months. Mahoney said his client plans to raze the Family Dollar building in concert with the demolition of those buildings. The space at 1455 and 1465 Hancock St. could then be used as a lay-down area during construction of Arcari's building.

Arcari's proposal received a warm reception from the Planning Board.

"Congratulations on bringing this to Quincy," said Alie Shaughnessy, an alternate member of the board. "I think it's wonderful for the city."

"Thank you for choosing the city of Quincy," said member John Kelly. "This looks like a great project.

I like the way it looks. It's a nice looking building. I think it will be a great addition to the city of Quincy downtown area."

Kelly also encouraged the developer to select a contractor who would employ local workers. "The men and women of the city of Quincy," he said, "would enjoy working on this project."

The board did not vote on the proposed building on April 12 as it still being reviewed by various city departments. A vote on the proposal could come as soon as next month's meeting.

On Wednesday, April 5, Officers Walker, Habib and O'Shea were dispatched to Discount Liquors located at 380 Granite St. for a report that a white Cadillac had just been stolen. Dispatch updated that the suspects were fleeing in the vehicle up Granite Street in the direction of Quincy Center.

Officers Habib and O'Shea responded to 380 Granite St. to speak to the victim and the store employee. Officers Walker, Cooper, Jackson and Graham began to search the area attempting to locate the vehicle and suspects.

Officer Walker pulled into the rear parking lot of 290 Quarry St. and located the stolen vehicle. The registration plate attached was the plate of the reported stolen vehicle. The vehicle was running and Officer Walker observed a male exit the stolen vehicle. Officer Walker updated dispatch as to his location and requested backup. The suspect was detained. Officer Walker read this suspect his Miranda warnings, which he said he understood.

Further investigation led to the identification of a second suspect. The second suspect was located inside of the apartment complex and was taken into custody. The initially detained suspect was arrested and charged with receiving stolen property, a motor vehicle (266/28) and conspiracy (247/7).

The second suspect was arrested and charged with larceny of a motor vehicle (266/28), conspiracy (247/7) and operating a motor vehicle on a suspended license (90/23). A female that was not directly involved with the theft of the vehicle, showed to have an active default warrant and was also taken into custody.

MA House Passes Comprehensive Tax Relief Package

In an effort to provide financial relief to families The Massachusetts House of Representatives passed a tax relief proposal April 14 targeted at residents across all income levels.

"This tax relief package strikes the critically important balance of providing permanent financial relief to residents and businesses across Massachusetts, without compromising the long-term financial security of the Commonwealth," Speaker of the House Ronald J. Mariano (D-Quincy). "I'm confident that this tax reform legislation will help to make Massachusetts more affordable for all residents, while also helping to make the Commonwealth more competitive with other states. I want to thank Chairman Michlewitz and Chairman Cusack for their work crafting this package, as well as all the Members of the House for their input."

"This tax relief package appropriately addresses the needs of working families," said Representative Tackey Chan (D-Quincy). "This legislation will put money in the hands of residents who drive the Commonwealth's main streets economy and help keep Massachusetts a competitive place for workers and businesses to thrive. I want to thank Speaker

Mariano and my colleagues in the House for passing this comprehensive piece of legislation."

The bill includes the following tax changes, some with a phased-in implementation method:

Child and Dependent Tax Credit

The bill combines the Child Care Expenses Credit with the Dependent Member of Household Credit to create one refundable $600 credit per dependent, while eliminating the current cap. This will be phased in over three years, and will be fully implemented in FY27: taxpayers could claim $310 per date, Renee Amilcar, the head of the transit system in the Canadian capital of Ottawa, was also reportedly under consideration for the top job at the MBTA.

In a recent interview, Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, said Healey conducted a thorough search for the T's new general manager and was optimistic Eng would be able to help turn things around.

"From what I understand, not knowing exactly who she interviewed, I think word got out that she had interviewed somebody from one of the Canadian transit systems. It seems like she did a pretty thorough search," Keenan said.

"The person she hired seems to be qualified. He was with the Long Island Rail Road from 2018 until his retirement and he also worked a chief engineer in New York's department of transportation, so he has some background in this. The reviews out of Long Island were that he did improve performance of the rail down there. He's been in the business for a long time.

"Just the fact that he's interested in taking on a project like the MBTA suggests to me he is going to be engaged, because he was retired. To come out of retirement to take this job, which obviously has a lot of headaches and it needs a lot of work, suggests that he is really interested in fixing it.

"We will work to get the funding that's necessary and the system in any other way he may think the legislature can help. It's going to be a long time before the T gets to the point where we all want it to be, and it's going to be a period of time until it gets to the point where people feel safe on it and know that it's reliable and efficient."

In recent months, the MBTA has been operating with a number of speed restrictions in place on its subway lines, including the Red Line that serves Quincy. Slow zones covered 24 percent of all subway tracks in the system as of April 14, according to a dashboard available on the MBTA's website. That figure is down slightly from March 31, when 27 percent of all tracks in the system were subject to speed restrictions.

Keenan, a regular Red Line rider, said he and other officials recently got a first-hand look at the process being used to repair tracks and eliminate the slow zones.

"I was down in the Quincy Adams train station about two weeks ago, it might be three weeks ago now, with Cong. Lynch, Rep. Chan. We were down there one night, we went there about 9:30, to watch them shut down the rails - they were busing people, and this was part of a scheduled shut-down and scheduled busing - to see them shut down the rail and then start the work," Keenan said.

"It is a pretty involved process, even just shutting down the electricity on the line. There are several steps that have to be done in order to guarantee the safety of the workers, and each one of those steps takes time."

"Once the rail is shut down, they bring in the repair equipment and they have to get that set up," Keenan continued. "The process involved in addressing these slow zones is, in six-foot sections, lifting the track with equipment and, while the track is in the air, assessing the ties underneath and in many cases removing those ties, adding additional material, moving those ties back into place or replacing those ties, and then compacting it and then putting the rail back down and moving to the next six-foot section.

"They do that during the course of the night and as they finish that work, they have to then run trains over it before service starts again early in the morning to make sure that the work has been done properly and the ride is okay. They do this work as a result of ul-trasonic tests they do on the track and when they notice deficiencies, they put the slow zone in place and then do this type of work.

"They only have two pieces of equipment that are capable of doing this work, so that equipment bounces from Green to Orange to Red Line. I asked if they could use additional equipment, and they said yes, but labor shortages are an issue.

"They do move these pieces. One might be on the Orange Line today and then they finish some work there and while that work settles, they might move that piece of equipment over to the Red Line and then when that work settles, they'll move another piece of equipment over to the Blue Line and rotate it through. They do that during the day rather than wait to do it at night and lose time on the tracks. But at 70 linear feet per night, it's going to take a period of time before they get through it all."

Eng has asked for information about the slow zones and is looking to speed up the process of addressing them, Keenan added.

"I'm optimistic that we have a new general manager. He seems to be quite engaged and interested, has some experience. He has already requested information on all of the slow zones and the plan is to do that with the hope of refining those plans and speeding up the process," Keenan said.

"Again, we will provide the resources that are necessary and try to move this along as fast as we can."

Moving forward, Keenan said the MBTA will likely require more funding from the state.

"Will there be a need for more funding? I believe so," he said. "The House budget came out today (April 12). I don't know what the figure was in the House budget for the MBTA - it might have been an additional $250 million over prior."

"The revenue from the MBTA is significant, but it is not nearly enough to support the capital improvements and the operations of the MBTA, so they have relied on additional appropriations and that may include federal funding and state funding, advertising revenues, all those sorts of things."

Keenan added that most public transit systems around the globe require some sort of government subsidy to keep running.

"I don't know this for certain, but my understanding is most public transportation systems in the world receive government subsidies and they are not self-sufficient," he said. "I couldn't point you to a study on that, that's just something I read a couple times in an article here or there, so I don't think the MBTA is unique in needing funding from sources other than revenue and advertising."

The millionaire tax - a 4 percent income tax surcharge on income over $1 million approved by voters statewide in November - is expected to provide the state with an additional $1 billion that is to be spent on education and transportation. Lawmakers are still working out how those funds will be allocated.

"There will be a discussion about roads, bridges, public transportation - meaning the MBTA, regional transit authorities, perhaps ferries," Keenan said. "The whole range of transportation options will be eligible for this money and how it will be apportioned, at this stage, is unclear."

The state is also projected to see an increase in tax revenue following the legalization of sports betting, however, Keenan said the new revenue is small compared to the size of the state budget. "Some estimates are maybe it will be $60 million initially, it may be double that two or three years from now, and we have a $50-plus billion budget," he said. "So, $60 million or $100 million, while it is obviously a lot of money, in the context of the size of our budget it's relatively small."

Wollaston Lutheran Church Eyeing New Building

wards, the project architect, said the church currently seats around 125 people.

A mezzanine would be located above part of the first floor and would include a balcony overlooking the sanctuary, a practice room for the choir, the pastor's office, a second office, and an audio/visual room.

The second floor would include various spaces for offices, educational space, and activities. The third floor would have a large activity space, which Edwards said could be used for sports like basketball. Also included on the third floor would be a kitchen and dining area as well as a balcony overlooking Hancock Street.

The bulk of the fourth floor would be open to the activity space below. Three residential units - two studios and a one-bedroom unit - would be located on the fourth floor as well. Those residences would be used for the church only and not rented to the public.

A chapel with space for 25 people would be located on the fifth floor of the building. The top level would also include a rooftop garden and a rooftop activity area.

Edward Fleming, the attorney who represented the church at the hearing, said many of those who go there live nearby.

"The community that the church services in this particular church facility is primarily from this Quincy community and primarily from the North Quincy and Wollaston community," he said. "Many of them walk, many of them bike...and others carpool."

The church can also help reduce the amount of traffic it generates through programming, Fleming added. The church could do so, for instance, by not having events going on upstairs while a service is being held inside the sanctuary.

If the new church building is constructed, it would lead to an extra 30 vehicle trips on Sundays compared to the current church building, said Erin Fredette of McMahon Associates, the traffic engineer for the project.

"Really over the course of a Sunday, not a significant increase in traffic or one that we would anticipate to have a significant impact on the adjacent roadways. During weekdays, we would anticipate that increase to be even less," she said.

"This is serving an existing community, so we're really trying to target that difference in anticipated trips to and from the project site."

The parking demand is expected to increase by three spaces on Sundays, Fredette said. She said there should be enough spaces, both on street and in the church's new garage, to meet that demand; the church currently has no off-street parking.

Fredette said the project team continues to work with the city's traffic and parking department on plans for pedestrian circulation and on a possible drop-off and pick-up area outside the new building. That could result in one or two on-street parking spaces being designated as a drop-off and pick-up area.

During the April 12 hearing, three residents of Ellington Road voiced concerns about traffic and parking in the area, as well as the impact that construction of the new church building would have on their neighborhood.

"I think it's a great endeavor, it sounds like they do great work for a lot of people, but at what cost?" said Valerie Rubino. "I'm really concerned about the construction part of it. If you're putting up jersey barriers and everything else, are we even going to be able to get around Hancock Street?"

"I think this is a huge burden on the residents," she added. "We have a lot of residents who are older and have lived there for years and years, and we have young families with children running up and down the street in their bikes."

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor Senior Manager, Public Affairs and Traffic Safety

I have a 1968 Chevrolet Corvette and I am looking for a shop to work on it. Any suggestions?

If I had this car, I would join a Facebook page and forums dedicated to Corvettes and see what others are doing. Also chat with local Corvette clubs and owners at weekly cruise nights or Cars and Coffee events. You gain a lot of information by asking other enthusiasts. If it is general repairs needed, then one of our AAA approved shops should be able to handle that. For a shop near you go to aaa.com/repair.

I own a 2010 Toyota RAV4 with 106,000 miles on it. My garage changes the oil with synthetic every six months. Is this overkill? I'm newly retired so I'm barely driving 200 miles per month, if that much.

In theory you can't change oil too often and what is nice about six-month oil changes is that other aspects of the car are inspected at the same time. Toyota recommends the oil is changed annually or every 10,000 miles which ever comes first. Yes, you can just change the RAV4 oil once per year, but still open the hood periodically and check the vital fluids as well as tire condition and tire pressure.

I have a 2019 Acura MDX with 23,000 miles. I brought it to dealer for A-1 service, oil change, filter and tire rotation. They recommended rear differential fluid service. I declined the service. Does this service seem premature at 23,000 miles?

Acura, like many vehicles today, uses indicator-based maintenance reminders rather than maintenance based on just time or mileage. Service A-1 is an oil change and tire check. Differential fluid replacement is maintenance sub-item 6. Depending on how the vehicle is driven, this could be at 30,000 miles or as high as 90,000 miles. My suggestion is to follow the maintenance reminder.

I am working on a 1995 Jeep Grand Cherokee. It is a very nice vehicle with a 4.0-liter engine with 118,000 miles. We are having issues with the heat. In the shop the heat seems to work OK, but when driving it loses heat. The temperature gauge acts very erratic. In the past year, we have replaced the heater core and radiator due to leaking. Since this issue started, I have replaced the thermostat, water pump and fan clutch. Both heater hoses get good and hot to the touch. The system has been flushed out as well. Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated.

This sounds like a classic head gasket leak. As the head gasket leaks, even a small amount, the system will get air-bound and block the flow of coolant to the heater core. At this point try to find someone with an exhaust gas analyzer or purchase a "block-check" kit. Either method is effective at finding partially burned hydrocarbons in the cooling system. A positive result will likely result in replacing the cylinder head gasket.

I recently was chatting with the owner of a Cadillac Escalade and asked how much it costs. I was shocked when he told me it was just over $115,000. Why does someone need a car that expensive and are they worth it?

I recently road tested a Lincoln Navigator Black Label edition. It was a beautiful vehicle, rode smoothly and had infinitely adjustable seats. The infotainment system sound quality and display was much better than anything in my house and this vehicle was also priced well over $100,000. The same people who buy luxury vehicles are likely the same who will buy a Rolex watch when a Timex watch may actually keep better time. Are these cars worth it, to the owner's yes, as an investment, no. Most cars lose value. It has been reported that most luxury vehicles can lose around 40-50 percent of their original value in the first five years of ownership.

How long should windshield wiper blades last? It seems like I replace them every nine months.

Generally, you can get at least a year out of a set of quality wiper blades. To extend the life of the blades, clean them periodically with a soft cloth and alcohol. I have also found that bargain priced wiper blades skip, chatter and are not worth the money.

I've worked for a GM car dealer for over 30-35 years in the parts department and former mechanic, so I know a little about cars. Now I've retired and have a 2018 KIA Forte 5 SX and want a softer ride than the 40 series tires give. What can I do to get a softer and quieter ride?

I think you are stuck with the firm sport ride you have. The 40-series tire doesn't give you much choice. On less sporty models, there is a 17-inch wheel 45-series tire and I'm not sure the money spent on new wheels would be worth it. The ride is more or less determined by the height of the sidewall. Moving to a 235/45R18 is only going to gain .3 or .4 of an inch of sidewall while still keeping about the same overall diameter and might give you a slight improvement in ride quality. When shopping for tires I would also look for reviews that specifically mention a quiet ride.

I have a 1998 Lexus ES with 155,000 miles on it. The timing belt was last changed 8 1/2 years and 40,000 miles ago. The manual calls for 6 years and 90,000 miles. Should I go by time or mileage to determine when to change it? The car is always garaged and goes about 6,000 miles a year.

It is entirely possible that the timing belt is in good condition, but there is no way to know unless you actually inspect it. Rubber timing belts (and many rubber parts) can fail due to mileage and age. If this were my 25-year-old Lexus and I planned on keeping it for a while, to be safe, and have dependable car, I would replace the timing belt.

I have a few questions about the insulation used in Honda car wiring. From what I understand, the insulation of Honda car wiring is soy-based. I've been the victim of critters eating the wiring of my Honda car, and the expense of getting it repaired. Now that Honda knows that little animals like to eat their soy-based wiring insulation, has Honda switched to an alternative wiring insulation, or are they still manufacturing new Honda cars whose wiring they know will be eaten by critters? I suspect it's a money thing. It must be cheaper to manufacture car's wiring using soy-based insulation than whatever it was that was used previously (and never suffered critter nibbles). Is soy-based wiring used by any other car manufacturers? Is soy-based wiring still being used? I'm contemplating buying a new car, or at least a newer used car, which will be parked outside since I have no garage and I'd like to avoid buying a car whose wiring is so tasty to little critters.

I too thought the soy-based wiring was an issue, but after talking to engineers at Honda, Ford and Toyota although the insulation is soy based it is not a food grade of material. The previous material was petroleum based and the soy-based material was developed to be more environmentally friendly than petroleum-based insulation. In many cars the seat cushions are also soy based. We recently had one of our AAA vans not start, and the issue was a huge nest under the hood. In this case based on the nest it was likely an opossum. Since rodents and squirrels chew through house and commercial wiring, walls and other building materials, I don't think the insulation is the issue. I think the rodent problem is just that, a rodent problem. As we build more and take over open space these destructive critters move into our vehicles.

I am having a problem with my 2018 Hyundai Tucson: it appears to be guzzling oil. Hyundai completed an oil consumption test and found it to be within range, so they will not fix it. As a result, I need to have my oil changed every 2,000-2,500 miles or it completely runs out. A quick Google search told me that there is a class action lawsuit from other Hyundai and Kia owners with the same problem, but Hyundai does not acknowledge that it is a problem. Any advice? Getting an oil change every two months is a huge inconvenience.

I would continue to work with Hyundai on this issue. Hyundai's guideline on oil consumption is, that if the engine uses more than one quart of oil in 1,000 miles, the engine is replaced. Based on your comments that the engine runs out of oil every 2,500 miles, your car's engine should qualify for engine replacement. In the interim, you don't need to change the oil every 2,500 miles, but you do need to check the oil periodically and add as necessary to keep the engine properly lubricated.

I have 1999 Porsche 986 Boxster with 176,000 miles and have question about coolant use. Is there any difference with G40 pink coolant with different companies, Pentofrost or Zerex, compared to all vehicles coolant/antifreeze like Prestone or Peak?

I'm a believer in using the correct coolant for the vehicle. There are at least eight different types of coolant. The "all-vehicle" coolant is fine to top off the system, but when it comes to a complete drain and refill it is best to use the, G40 pink, Hybrid Organic Acid Technology coolant. Mixing different engine coolants or using the wrong coolant can result in lack of lubrication and increased chances of corrosion.

I have a problem with my 1986 Dodge pickup powered by a slant-six engine. I started it up this morning, no problem, was driving down my block like normal when it just shut down. When I tried to re-start it, she fired right up but died again as soon as I released the key. Knowing this is typical of a faulty ballast resistor, I had a spare, changed it and it did the same thing. Any thoughts?

The ballast resistor reduces the voltage to the ignition to improve component life and also are a regular failure point, which is why many Chrysler owners carry a spare. At this point, you need to test the wiring (ignition circuit) ignition switch. Check that the wiring going to the ballast resistor has power when it should. You may find a faulty fuse or fusible link that is cutting off power to the ignition coil. The other possible and common issue is a faulty control module.

My 2009 Pontiac two-door GT with 138,000 miles on it since birth. I've noticed a little squeal or sort of rubbing sound when I start out and turn left. I have had the rack and pinion steering unit replaced a few years ago. Could that be happening again?

It is unlikely the steering rack is making noise. It is possible that the drive belt of tensioner is the source of the noise. When the engine is started the alternator works harder and the belt may be slipping slightly.

Do you have an app I could download to answer questions when I have a problem with my car?

No just email me, jpaul@aaanortheast.com or aaa.com/cardoctor. I try to answer every question.

I have a 2017 GMC Yukon with Magnaride struts and shocks. My dealer service department is recommending replacement of all four units at a quoted cost of $4,700. I know these units are more expensive than standard struts but the quoted amount seems high. Is this pricing in line with expected replacement costs? Would non-OEM struts be an acceptable alternative?

Magnetic shock absorbers use a special metallic based fluid. When an electric charge is applied to the shock body, the fluid changes its viscosity, allowing for a change in ride and handling. The shocks are controlled by various sensors. GM's MagneRide is quite expensive, and the $4,700 quoted price is not out of line for the factory parts. There are replacement parts that could save you some money and certainly worth looking into. Be a little cautious and to see that you are getting an original equipment replacement part. One final thing: if these shocks are being replaced due to a fluid leak, some slight discoloration from oil seepage is normal and doesn't indicate the shocks need replacement.

I really hope you can help me out. My car is stalling, hard to start, showing almost every light available. Constantly showing TPMS, works fine for a little while after codes have been cleared. Ifixd (code reader) said sensor in the intake manifold that Kia dealer told me to replace and I did. I replaced my ignition relay myself and spark plugs, oil change and transmission flush. I need car for my Uber and Lyft job. The codes are P2016, P200A, P0644 and P0365.

The P200A could mean the intake manifold is an issue the P2016 is a wiring issue to the sensor which you replaced. The most common fix is to replace the intake manifold. The P0365 indicates low voltage to the camshaft position sensor The P0644 code is a communications problem between the computer and the various modules. If this were my vehicle with these codes, I would be looking at a wiring issue.

I was reading online and watched a video about the XTOOL D7 scan tool. It claimed to be an all system diagnosis tool, code reader and even a key programmer. I have seen you write about Innova scan tool and its website. What do you think of this XTOOL D7?

The XTOOL D7 tool looks impressive but it seems to promise a lot of functionality for $500. After watching some different videos that have been posted, some were very positive and others quite negative. At this point I'm cautiously skeptical. The Innova scan tool that I have mentioned in the past works well and when used in conjunction with their Repair Solutions app makes it easy to recommend.

I own a 2008 Chevy Cobalt with 136,000 miles on it. It runs like the day it came out of the showroom and looks like it too (well almost). It sees the shop once a year for the state inspection; all other maintenance I do myself. Here is my non-problem: The original battery lasted 10 years. Actually, it didn't fail, but I thought "how long can this thing last?" and changed it out of precaution. The new battery is five years old and doing fine. Here is my theory: The battery is located in the trunk of this car where it isn't exposed to the temperature changes under the hood. Of course, the long cable to the engine costs more and the manufacturers are not fond of spending the extra money, thereby keeping the battery under the hood in most cars. Since a lot of people write to you about battery problems, do you think I am on to something with this theory or was I just lucky?

I suspect a combination of both luck and maintenance. The enemy of a battery is heat and vibration, so being mounted away from the engine heat can help. The other and perhaps biggest factor that goes into battery life is cycling. Keeping a battery fully charged is what helps maintain its life. Just a couple of jumpstarts can take away quite a bit of battery longevity. I have a 2015 VW with a battery that is dated 2014, still original and still doing fine. I attribute this to the fact when the car doesn't get driven for a while it sits on a Battery Tender (battery maintainer). Should I replace that battery out of precaution, probably, but for now I'm just going to see how long.

I was pleased to see you think hydrogen will power electric motors/vehicles in the future. I've had several discussions with various people on social media about hydrogen as a power source. While I agree with you, many others bring up counter points of low energy density of hydrogen, the difficulty of storing and pumping it without leaking, the problem of all the vehicles running around as little Hindenburgs, and there are complaints of the cost of generating hydrogen. Can you elaborate a bit more?

I have driven several hydrogen powered cars and found them to be very functional and unlike battery electric cars, refill quickly-five minutes or so. There are 300 million vehicles in the U.S. driving around with very explosive gasoline and then there are the 10,000 gallon fuel trucks. I believe that hydrogen can be a very safe fuel. Currently the cost of generating hydrogen is much more expensive than gasoline, but those costs are also likely to come down and popularity rises. I believe we will see hydrogen as a fuel for commercial vehicles, large industrial application and maybe even powering portable generators that will charge battery electric cars.

My husband listens to you on your podcast and asked me to get your opinion. I own a 2013 Lexus RX350 with only 80,000 miles. This issue is we have been told the head gaskets need replacement and leaking coolant. Should I replace them or buy another car?

The engine used in your Lexus is a very common engine used in many Toyota and Lexus vehicles and is generally quite dependable. The head-gasket issue typically leaks coolant externally rather than the more typical internal combustion chamber leak. The issue is this is a very costly repair taking about 25 hours. Using a labor rate of $150 per hour you are looking at $3,750 plus parts. Then you need to add the uncertainty of other possible problems or needed repairs. Since the vehicle has a value of $10,000 to $20,000 value depending on condition I would want to fully evaluate the car before putting this much money into repairs. If the car is solid, putting this much money into it can make sense. If there are some other problems coming down the road, it may be time to let it go. Also, if you decide on a new car, it will have the latest safety and convenience features and may also be more fuel efficient.

I own a 2010 Honda Odyssey EX, purchased new in July 2011, which is kept outside and maintained as directed. It has been modified so that I can drive from my wheelchair and is important for my personal mobility. In 2019, after chronic problems with cabin cooling, the AC condenser was replaced. In 2020 the AC compressor, expansion valve and receiver dryer were replaced, and in 2022, another AC compressor. After the last cooling repairs, it appears that my heating system is not working as well as previously. At 75° the air is hot, at 70° the air is tepid, if not cool. It was diagnosed as needing a door actuator motor after the two center console vents stopped producing airflow, which was installed. However, the air is still not warm. I am told fuses, sensor, cabin filter and electrical shorts have been ruled out. Any ideas?

Like many vehicles built in the past 15 years, the climate control is managed by a computer. In the case of the Odyssey the system can be checked with a professional scan tool or onboard diagnostics. I would start with a scan of the system (there are at least 15 possible fault codes). In addition, I wouldn't rule out the basics. As complicated as this system seems there is still a cable-controlled heater valve and basic water pump, thermostat and hoses, that all should be inspected.

Our 2020 Ford Escape Titanium Hybrid at just 25,000 miles is already on its third 12-volt battery and is at the dealer right now potentially gunning for its fourth. This time and the last time, the dealer has kept the car for several days to search for any unusual parasitic drains. All software updates have been done and the charging system checked. I've suggested that the tiny 12-volt battery is undersized given the plethora of accessories it supports. Reading online on various car forums where other owners have solved this same issue with a larger battery that bolts right in. The dealer, tech advisor says they can only do what the factory authorizes or recommends, and an upgraded battery is not among them. The notion of "too many short trips" has been discussed, but the use that this car gets should more than allow sufficient recharge time with each use. I started tracking the output voltage of the battery regularly since the last replacement was done in November, and lately it hasn't been above 11.8 volts in the morning and rarely reads above 12.3 volts even after a long trip. As I understand it, these are dismal readings. Any thoughts?

A battery is at 100 percent state of charge at 12.6 volts and at the reading provided, 12.3 volts is about 70 percent state of charge and 11.8 volts is closer to a 30 percent state of charge, so something is certainly going on. The dealer is correct: when it comes to warranty, they can only repair or replace as authorized by the manufacturer. Although a bigger battery may cure the symptom of the car not starting it doesn't address the issue of why the battery voltage is low. Although if this were my car, I certainly would try replacing the 12-volt battery with the larger battery for a non-hybrid vehicle. The hybrid Escape battery is a 45-ampere hour battery with 395 cold cranking amps. The non-hybrid Escape battery is 70-ampere hour battery with 760 cold cranking amp rating.

I occasionally see your readers reference a Low Oil 'Level' light. It has always been my understanding that the oil light indicates a loss of oil 'pressure' which warrants shutting off your engine ASAP. Am I wrong? Are there actually sensors now that monitor oil 'level'?

In many vehicles today, there are sensors that measure both low oil pressure and low oil level. You are correct when the red oil pressure light illuminates you should shut off the engine ASAP to prevent possible internal damage. The oil level light (typically yellow) will usually illuminate when the oil level is down one quart. Like many warning lights red requires the driver to take immediate action and the yellow warning lights are cautionary, but shouldn't be ignored.

I have a 2018 Mercedes-Benz GLA 250. Is it necessary to get it maintained/serviced at the Mercedes-Benz dealership? They are ridiculously expensive.

There are times when the dealer is the best choice, such as warranty repairs, recalls and some tricky and complicated repairs that may require software updates. Although it is possible that independent shops can do some of this work, they may not have the necessary tools. As for regular maintenance (fluid changes) tires, brakes and suspension services as examples any quality shop should be able to provide these services.

Who's Dining In My Garden?

By MELINDA MYERS

You take a walk through the garden and find branches trimmed, flowers missing or bark damaged. Of course, the culprit is nowhere to be seen. You may have suspects in mind but a close look at the damage and surroundings can help you identify who is dining on your plants. Knowing this can help you reduce the risk in the future.

Rabbits can be found year-round in the landscape. They have sharp teeth, making a 45-degree clean cut much like your bypass pruners. Their damage usually occurs within their 3-foot reach.

They eat a variety of flowers and vegetables throughout the spring and summer. As these plants fade in fall, they begin dining on trees and shrubs. You may find bark gnawed and branches, stems, and buds clipped off the plants.

Deer tear vegetation, leaving a ragged tip on browsed plants. You may find damage on a variety of flowers, vegetables, trees, shrubs, and plants pulled out of the ground with the distasteful ones left behind. In fall, the bucks rub trunks of young trees damaging the tender tissue below that transports water and nutrients between the roots and leaves. Deer usually feed at dusk but as they become comfortable around people they can often be seen dining during the day.

Voles are brown rodents that look similar to field mice with small ears and short tails. Their trails of disturbed grass found as the snow melts may be your first clue that they are present. These rodents are active year-round, unlike moles that hibernate for winter. They eat seeds, plant roots, and bulbs not insects like moles. As the snow recedes, you may also notice bark damage on trees and shrubs. They leave ¼" side-by-side grooves in the wood at the base of the plants.

Squirrels are fun to watch; that is until they eat all the birdseed and damage your plants. They dig bulbs and uproot other plants, eat and bury nuts in the lawn and garden, and take a bite out of multiple tomatoes, strawberries, and more. They damage trees by ripping off the bark and clipping off branches. If that wasn't enough, they may gnaw on structures and furnishings. Treating the damaged area and a 12" radius around it with a repellent can help discourage more damage.

Chipmunks are active from spring through fall. They don't hibernate but are inactive in winter depending upon their food stash to survive. You will find them digging in potted plants, hanging baskets, and rock walls. They eat grains, nuts, berries, seeds, insects, mushrooms, carrion, young birds, and bird eggs.

Their tunnels can be 20 to 30 feet long and are well hidden. The openings are only 2" in diameter with no surrounding mounds of soil.

Commercial and homemade scare tactics are an option. Unfortunately, most of these critters have become accustomed to people and are not deterred. Motion-activated ones are a bit more effective but make sure they are not annoying to you and your neighbors.

Fencing tight to the ground with a secure gate and at least 3 feet – preferably 4 feet – high is effective for preventing rabbit damage. Deer on the other hand need a much taller fence. Although they can jump 7 feet or higher, a 5-6' fence is often enough to keep them out of smaller gardens. Sink fencing 4 to 6" into the ground to protect plants from voles.

Repellents labeled for controlling the critter that is causing the damage are another option. Organic Plantskydd (plantskydd.com) is labeled for repelling, not harming, all of these critters so you only need one product. Since it is rain and snow resistant, you won't need to apply it as often. Always read and follow label directions for the most effective control.

A bit of defensive action goes a long way in protecting your gardens and landscape from hungry critters this season.

BBB Alert: How To Spot Fake Celebrity Scams

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

To trick you, scammers need to earn your trust first. What better way than by posing as a popular celebrity?

Recently, BBB Scam Tracker has received numerous reports involving products supposedly endorsed by well-known and trusted celebrities. With the rise in deepfake scams and ever-improving AI technology, these phony endorsements are more convincing than ever.

How the scam works

You see a post on social media of a celebrity endorsing a weight loss product, health supplement, or another product. In the post, photos show the celebrity using the product, or a video features their voice talking about the amazing results they've seen. It sounds too good to be true, but the photos and video look so real! Also, the social media account appears to belong to the celebrity.

For example, one consumer reported ordering "Oprah Winfrey's keto gummy bear supplements" after seeing a phony endorsement. They explained: "The ad showed Oprah's face and featured her explaining the product and offering a first-time buyer discount of buy one bottle for $49 and get a second one free. I clicked on the link and put in my order. The next morning, I received an email stating my order had been processed for $198!" The company denied the customer a refund and shipped the product anyway. Upon arrival, they found the gummies were from a company that had no affiliation with Oprah Winfrey.

Before you make a purchase, take a minute to re-examine the post and social media account. The photos and videos are most likely fake. If you make a purchase, you'll lose money (often more than you expected) on a product that is substandard or doesn't exist.

How to spot fake celebrity scams

• Get familiar with deepfake technology. Scammers use deepfake technology to trick people. They take real video clips and photos of a person and use them to create new videos and audio clips. Deepfake images and video can be surprisingly realistic. See this BBB article for tips on spotting deepfakes.

• Understand how AI generated images work. With AI image generators, you can type in a few words describing the image you want created and the AI generates an image based on your text. It's valuable technology, but scammers can abuse it to create images to back up their stories, products, or outright lies. The point? Don't assume a photo is proof that something is trustworthy.

BBB Accredited Businesses promise to adhere to BBB's Standards for Trust.

so look for the BBB Accredited Business Seal. It's the Sign of a Better Business.

• Know that scammers often impersonate celebrities. Don't assume celebrity posts, images, or videos are legitimate until you verify that they came from an official source. Just because something is shared widely on social media does not mean it's real. For example, an AI generated photo of Pope Francis in a designer puffer jacket recently went viral. This deepfake video of Ukrainian president Volodymyr Zelenskyy telling his soldiers to surrender was also widely circulated on social media. Always do your due diligence before you purchase or reshare something you saw on social media.

• Only do business with companies you know and trust. If you want to purchase a product or make a donation, do so through a reputable business or nonprofit. If you want to buy something from a company you aren't familiar with, do plenty of research first.

Look up the company name, website, and contact information. Read reviews on BBB.org and do a general search with the company's name along with the word "scam." Don't skip this step, even if you're excited about the product. It's the best way to protect yourself from fraud and identity theft.

BBB Tip: Find The Right Home Builder For You

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

When building a new home, finding the right builder is crucial. Ask friends and family for suggestions and contact industry associations for a list of members.

In the United States, check with the National Association of Home Builders. In Canada, refer to the Canadian Home Builders' Association. You can also look for a local association to help you find the right builder. Of course, BBB.org is also a great source of information about local builders you may be considering, including BBB Accredited Businesses.

Many things you need to do when hiring a builder are the same things you need to do when hiring a contractor or remodeler. BBB's tips for hiring a contractor or remodeler cover the basics, like getting estimates, what to look for in a contract, and reviewing previous work.

Four specific items you can discuss with your home builder:

Style: If you already have a specific home style in mind, try to find a builder who specializes in that style. Ask how many homes they have constructed in the style you like. If you are still considering different styles, find a builder with a wide range of experience and check their work in various styles.

Communication: Do you feel you can easily communicate? Be sure you can reach the builder by phone, email, or in person and that they respond in a timely manner. Ask how the builder will deal with changes or problems that come up. Remember that you will be dealing closely with this person through the whole process and, after they complete the work, as you live in your home.

Experience: You also want to consider how long the builder has been in business. It takes several years to establish a sound business, and you want to be sure your builder will be around to service warranties after your home is complete.

Licensing: Talk to your builder about permits, but also do independent research with your local department of licensing or permits to find out what is required. Make sure the builder will be able to get all required permits before starting the work. Also, ensure your builder is registered with your state or province's registration and licensing board.

FINANCIAL FOCUS: Do You Have Enough Emergency Savings?

Many people would agree that preparation is the key to success in many areas of life.

Yet, when it comes to being ready for a financial emergency, a sizable percentage of Americans are feeling distinctly unprepared — and that can lead to problems.

Consider these survey findings from financial services provider Edward Jones and Morning Consult:

- Nearly two in five Americans expect that their emergency savings would last no more than a month.
- Less than 40 percent of respondents consider their emergency savings account to be fully funded.

It's important to have adequate emergency savings

MARIE O'RIORDAN KELLY

for two key reasons. First, when an unexpected financial need arises, such as a major home or car repair, you may well have to act quickly. And second, if you don't have the funds readily available to meet this sudden need, you may be forced to dip into your long-term investments, including your IRA and 401(k). This typically isn't a good move, as taking money early from these accounts could lead to both taxes and penalties.

And even more important, you'd be taking away resources from accounts you will almost certainly need to help provide income for a retirement that could last two, or even three, decades.

So, if you want to be financially prepared for emergencies, how much money should you have available? There's no one right answer for everyone, but generally speaking, it's a good idea to keep three to six months' worth of living expenses — or a full year's worth, if you're retired — in a liquid, low-risk account that's separate from the financial accounts you might use for everyday spending.

Of course, given the high cost of living, it's not necessarily easy to put away several months of living expenses — at least, not all at once. That's why you might want to have a certain amount automatically moved each month from your checking or savings account into the account you've designated for emergency needs. And when you get a financial "windfall," such as a year-end bonus at work or a tax refund, you might want to use part of this money for your emergency fund, too. You can also use these sources to replenish your emergency fund if you deplete some or all of it.

Here's something else to remember about an emergency fund: Keep it for emergencies. As mentioned above, you should hold this fund apart from accounts that you draw on for daily expenses — but you'll also want to avoid the temptation to use the money for other things, such as investment opportunities that may come your way. That's not to say you shouldn't be prepared for these opportunities, but you can do so by keeping some cash or cash equivalents within your portfolio. And, as an additional benefit, the presence of cash can potentially help reduce the impact of market volatility on a portfolio that's otherwise heavily weighted toward stocks.

Building and maintaining an emergency fund should be an essential part of your overall financial strategy — so, if you haven't started one yet, there's no time like the present.

Fashions From Re-Style Consignment, Hajjar's Men's Clothing Store; Free Jacks To Walk Runway

By MARALIN MANNING

The Maria Droste Counseling Agency's annual spring fashion show, "COMPASSION FOR FASHION," will be held on Thursday, May 18th at the Quincy Marriott Hotel, 1000 Marriott Drive, starting at 6 p.m.

Each year this event is held to benefit the efforts of the Maria Droste Counseling Agency, founded in Quincy in 1992 and located 1354 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The event committee is currently planning a full fledged welcome, to a very long-awaited spring. As always, this event will prove to be a very fashionable opportunity to socialize with friends and associates. It will be an evening filled with inspiration, fashion, food and fun.

As usual, the highlight of the evening will be a sensational spring fashion show produced by Re-Style Consignment, a very popular recycle shop in neighboring, Cohasset. For the men in attendance, the latest in spring looks from Hajjar's Men's Clothing Store in Quincy.

This year, special guest superstars will serve as the male models. The New England Free Jacks, a Greater Boston Professional Rugby Team will take to the runway with the same hardworking, free spirited gusto that they exhibit during their home games at Quincy's Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

To open the program the committee has announced a featured keynote speaker, who will provide the inspirational focus for the evening. Dr. Kristen Lee, UICSW is an internationally recognized, award winning behavioral science clinician, researcher, educator, speaker and comedian from Boston. She is also among the Lead Faculty for Behavioral Sciences at North Eastern University. Referred to often as Dr. Kit, she is someone who is very well known internationally amongst Mental Health Care professionals.

The four very basic values, which are the guiding credo for the staff of counseling professional at the Maria Droste Agency, are acceptance, respect, compassion and healing. At this agency, a professional staff delivers compassionate and quality services to all who are in need of mental and holistic health assistance. The kind of assistance that will nurture both their bodies and their spirit.

In 2022 the agency's staff of Mental Health Care therapists provided

6,631 Therapy Session and waived $523,000 in fees for service. It is important to note that 91 percent of their clients receive reduced payments for their sessions. With their compassionate mission set clearly in mind, the full-time staff and the many volunteers of licensed professional social workers, have provided critical support to individual, couples and family groups with clients ranging in age from seven to seventy.

The ability to offer these programs relies on the work of the event committee organizing this special evening, the gracious event sponsors, those offering their services on the runway and in addition those who annually attend. This is the agency's major fundraising effort and the success of the evening makes the most vital services the agency delivers available to those who are so in need of their compassionate care. Check the agency's website for more information about the agency, their services and the event. www.mariadrostecounseling.com Tickets for the event are available on line at www.mariadrostecounseling.com or by calling Stacey Campbell at the agency (617-471-5686).

Better Business Bureau Tips For Hiring A Home Contractor

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

With spring right around the corner, many homeowners are making the move to repair or replace their current roofs. The off-season may be the best time to jump on a home improvement project, with lower prices and available materials.

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) has tips to keep in mind whenever hiring any contractor to work in your home. You can find advice on everything from researching vendors to getting estimates to signing a contract in Tips for Hiring a Contractor.

Here are six tips for hiring a roofer:

• Make sure you understand the full scope of the project. What exactly is the roofer going to do? Will they be doing spot repairs or replacing the whole roof? Will they be removing the old roof or covering it with the new roof? Ensure you understand the solutions' pros and cons and that everything is detailed in your contract.

• Ask about clean-up and waste removal. Confirm that your contractor will be responsible for taking away all old materials and cleaning up your site after their work is complete.

• Consider your gutters and landscaping. A roofing job will require ladders that can cause damage when leaned against your gutters or stuck in your landscaping. How will your roofer protect against damage or fix things after the job?

• Plan for bad weather. What happens if there is bad weather while your roof project is underway? Ask your roofer about what they will do to protect your home in the case of rain or snow.

• Check your insurance coverage. If your project is for fixing the damage, check your homeowner's insurance to see if your project is covered and how you should proceed if it is. (You also want to check your contractor's insurance coverage for worker's compensation, property damage, and personal liability.)

• Different contractors for different roofing systems. Roofing contractors may be certified to install specific types of roofs. You can check with the manufacturer to see if your contractor is certified for their system.

Clearly written proposals that are detailed and broken down into separate line items are a good sign that the contractor is thorough and has prepared an accurate estimate.

Your estimate or proposal should include the following:

- The type of roof covering, manufacturer, and color
- Materials to be included in the work, e.g., underlayment, ice dam protection membrane

- Scope of work to be done

- Removal or replacement of the existing roof

- Flashing work, e.g., existing flashings to be replaced or re-used, adding new flashing, flashing metal type

- Ventilation work, e.g., adding new vents

- Who is responsible for repairing/replacing exterior landscape or interior finishes damaged during the work? Ensure that it contains language addressing who is responsible for any damage that occurs due to the work.

- All items of concern and work to be done should be included in the contract.

- Installation method

- Approximate starting and completion dates

- Payment procedures
- Length of warranty and what is covered, e.g., workmanship, water leakage

- Who will haul away the old roofing materials and/or project waste (e.g., extra materials, packaging, etc.)? Is there an extra charge for this service?

There are also ways you can extend the life of your roof:

- Clear dead or overhanging branches. Have a professional tree service evaluate the branches hanging over your roof and decide whether or not they are a risk. If the branches are dead, that increases the chance of them falling onto your roof. In addition, heavily shaded areas of your roof can retain moisture, which sometimes leads to mold. Regular trimmings of overhanging branches will help your roof dry uniformly.

- Inspect for hail damage. After strong storms, especially hailstorms, have a licensed insurance adjuster or contractor inspect your roof. Dimples and cracks on the shingles are key indicators that hail damage has occurred.

- Keep your eyes and ears open and remove debris. Homeowners should inspect their roofs regularly and monitor for hail damage. The homeowner can do ground-level inspections. You should also keep your gutters clear. If debris needs to be removed, call a professional or be very cautious when getting up on your roof.

Common roofing scams often occur after a storm when a roofer "just happens" to be on your street and notices damage to your roof. Learn more about these so-called "Storm Chasers" at BBB.org/Storm.

Another approach is to knock on your door and tell you they have extra shingles or roofing from another job and can offer you a good deal.

Friends Of Ruth Gordon Amphitheater: Let's Fill It With People, Applause

Op Ed

The Ruth Gordon Amphitheater is a unique and beautiful feature on Pageant Field in Merrymount Park – a part of the history of Quincy. It was built to honor one of Quincy's most famous women, Ruth Gordon, actress, author, screenwriter, playwright, winner of multiple awards (Academy, Golden Globe, Emmy). Ruth Gordon was above all a devoted Quincy citizen.

Mayor LaRaia initiated building the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in 1977; while Mayor McCauley finished the amphitheater in 1984. Its construction involved more than 100 CETA employees—many of whom still live in Quincy and remember working on the amphitheater. We've heard their stories. The pitch perfect acoustics, sightlines and natural setting of the amphitheater come together to provide a magical place for performances of all kinds.

In the words of Playwright, John Greiner-Ferris, "You imagine the stone steps filled with people, and lights coming on a summer night...it's the kind of place where you fall in love, and only you can see the beauty and possibility!"

It was a shock to the community when a neighbor noted that they could not use the amphitheater, because it was going to be filled. Then the minutes from a Park & Recreation Board meeting were discovered stating that the "repurposing and re-use" of the Amphitheater had been approved. It came as an even greater shock when citizens uncovered irrefutable evidence of the City's intent to destroy and fill the space. On March 7th, we confirmed the existence of a request for a bid to remove seats and fill the amphitheater. Bids were due on March 9th with a finish date of May 1st.

The Quincy community and beyond voiced their displeasure loud and clear. There are more than 30,000 views on social media, supported by phone calls, letters, emails, 2 well-attended stand-outs, and an even better attended community meeting. The coming together of the community has been unprecedented. People have written, for example: "It is such a special place, and one that the city should take advantage of – not destroy!" With only three days to spare, the filling of the amphitheater was removed from the request for bids on March 6th.

The benefits of having the amphitheater are numerous—from entertainment of all kinds to just being a place to reduce stress. It is a perfect setting for outdoor lectures and classes. The amphitheater is a short walk from Central Middle School and close to Black's Creek, an ecologically diverse marsh. Likewise, without a movie theater in Quincy, there is great enthusiasm for movie nights and film festivals. Imagine the limitless possibilities: movies, music, theater and dancing that would bring the amphitheater alive and promote tourism in Quincy.

The amphitheater needs some repairs and improvements; it has been ignored for a long time. The Community Preservation Coalition, a fund that is matched by Massachusetts State funds to be used for restoration of parks and historic structures among other things, is an excellent potential funding source for this restoration project. In addition, grants from Massachusetts Cultural Council, Quincy Cultural and private foundations could provide needed funds – along with major donations, fundraising events and merchandise sales.

While the Amphitheater has been used; it has not been optimally scheduled for use. We are fortunate to have Kilroy Square and the Hancock Adams Common as additional entertainment venues in Quincy. The Ruth Gordon Amphitheater would not detract from these. Rather, the existence of a restored unique historical amphitheater, in a natural setting, will be one more draw to our city.

The amphitheater has brought our community together. The Friends of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater is a growing group of citizens who care, and who are willing to protect, restore and revitalize it. We have volunteers throughout the city. These include architects, lawyers, CPAs, and entertainers who we need to make a dream of a vibrant amphitheater a reality. So many have and will donate their time and sweat to make the amphitheater a huge success. There is a growing list of performing arts supporters from local organizations such as Center Stage to those beyond Quincy, such as the Commonwealth Shakespeare Company and Improv Boston.

We propose the creation of a 501c3 nonprofit entity that with a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) would partner with the City of Quincy to raise funds, oversee restoration, market, program and operate the amphitheater. Boston's Herter Park Amphitheater, on the Charles River, serves as a successful model for this arrangement. It was long abandoned until Bostonians formed their own nonprofit and MOU agreement with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR). It is now a thriving Arts resource for the Allston/Brighton community. In Quincy, we can certainly do likewise.

The Arts reduce stress and provide a means for creative expression and innovation. They are good for the health and wellbeing of people young and old. The Arts bring communities and people of all cultures together; they are even beneficial financially for cities and towns. In Quincy, there has long been a need for more Arts and Culture.

The community clearly wants and needs the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater. It belongs not to any one person, but to the citizens of Quincy. People are ready, willing, and able to fund, restore, and enjoy this Arts space. Even a hint of filling the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater is beyond comprehension – let's fill the amphitheater instead with people, laughter, and applause.

READERS FORUM

Developers And Campaign Contributions

Dear Editor,

In light of the upcoming Ordinance Committee meeting on April 24th - at which the 99-year Quarry Hills lease extension may be voted on - a group of concerned citizens and I have been conducting research on campaign contributions received by the committee members, who are also our city councillors. I last wrote about this issue in March, when I and others expressed concerns about unfulfilled terms by Quarry Hills Associates of the current lease and the lack of accountability and transparency to the public so far in this process affecting public lands.

This is an important election year for the city of Quincy, and with the large amounts of development underway and planned without adequate public advisory or input, we have been curious to know who has been taking money from developers, in what amounts, and the timing of those contributions. At least two of the councillors - in our research that our volunteers are presently double-checking for accuracy - have recently received a surge of campaign contributions from individuals linked to Quarry Hills Associates. If your readers are curious, they can look up each councillor by name for themselves at the website of the Office of Campaign and Political Finance website (ocpf.us).

Some may argue that even if councillors took money from developers, they may not necessarily vote favorably on measures put forth by said developers. In our efforts to meet individually with councillors to raise further concerns with this 99-year lease and the process around it, we have received replies from councillors proudly declaring that Quarry Hills Associates have answered all their questions, and that they are satisfied with the lack of an independent financial audit and verbalized, off-the-record promises to do better. Again, my group is still working on verifying our findings before naming names, but interested readers can look for themselves on ocpf.us to see which councillors may have taken this deal.

There will be more details to come, but what we have seen so far in terms of some of our city councillors remaining strong and independent in the face of overwhelming developer interest in our city, is not encouraging.

Thank you,

Betty Lo

AAA: MA Gasoline Prices Up 5 Cents

The average gas price in Massachusetts is up 5 cents from last week ($3.34), averaging $3.39 per gallon. Monday's price is 11 cents higher than a month ago ($3.28), and 68 cents lower than April 17, 2022 ($4.07). Massachusetts' average gas price is 28 cents lower than the national average.

The national average for a gallon of regular gasoline rose seven cents since last week to hit $3.67. The main culprit is the high cost of oil, gasoline's main ingredient, which is hovering in the low $80s per barrel. The national average has risen daily since March 29.

"When the cost of crude oil crosses the $80 a barrel mark, that puts a lot of upward pressure on what we pay at the pump," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Vice President of Public and Government Affairs, "and as long as oil costs remain at the current level, drivers will likely see incremental price increases for now."

AAA Northeast's April 17 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 7 cents higher than last week ($3.60), averaging $3.67 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 22 cents higher than a month ago ($3.45), and is 41 cents lower than this day last year ($4.08).

Pay Attention To Safety When Using Spring Lawn Mowers And Other Outdoor Power Equipment

Know Your Machine, Review Safety Procedures And Follow Manufacturer's Guidance

Spring is here and as we get out our lawn mowers and other outdoor power equipment out from storage to work in our yards, businesses and other green spaces, it's important to keep safety in mind.

"Think safety first," says Kris Kiser, president and CEO of the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI), an international trade association representing outdoor power equipment, small engine, utility vehicle, golf car and personal transport vehicle manufacturers and suppliers.

"I can't stress enough to review manufacturer's safety guidance before starting up any equipment—especially your lawn mower. Review your owner's manual and do maintenance on your equipment," said Kiser.

OPEI offers these tips for readying and using your outdoor power equipment:

- Know not all lawn mowers are the same. Whether your mower is a garden tractor, zero turn mower or other, it has a unique design, requirements, weight classification, and other differences that impact how to use it safely. The newest machines have the latest safety standards.

- Know your specific machine. Many mowers may look similar but the technology is ever evolving with evolving safety systems. They vary in design, power supply, performance, operating parameters, and more. Your manufacturer-supplied owner's manual will guide you in these differences. Read your owner's manual.

- When using mowers on slopes follow the manufacturer's guidance to the letter.

- Do not disable or alter manufacturer-installed safety equipment.

- Walk your yard before mowing. Slopes, wet grass and weather may impact equipment performance, as well as safe handling procedures. Pick up sticks and limbs that may have fallen to the ground over the winter and any loose objects that could be hit by a mower. Inspect trees for damaged limbs that may get in your way when mowing.

- Look over equipment before use. Check the air filter, oil level and gasoline tank. Watch for loose belts and missing or damaged parts. Replace any parts needed or take your equipment to a qualified service representative.

- Protect your power. Use only E10 or less fuel in gasoline-powered outdoor power equipment if it is not designed for higher ethanol blends. Add a fuel stabilizer if you don't use up all the fuel in the tank right away. Burn off any fuel before storing the mower more than 30 days. For battery-powered equipment, only use battery packs specified by the manufacturer. Follow all charging instructions as outlined in the owner's manual. Be sure to store fuel and batteries safely. Keep batteries away from other metal objects, store them in a climate-controlled area, and never stack batteries.

- Keep children and pets away from machines during operation.

- Keep your mower clean. It will run more efficiently and last longer. Always remove dirt, oil or grass before using and storing. Store equipment in a dry place, avoiding damp or wet environments.

Individuals Stabbed In Granite St. Home Invasion

By SCOTT JACKSON

Multiple people were stabbed during a home invasion Sunday night in Quincy, police said. The suspect in the home invasion has been identified and there is no active or continued threat to the area.

Police received several calls about a home invasion in the 400 block of Granite Street shortly after 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, Police Chief Paul Keenan said in a statement. Police received reports that gunshots had been fired and multiple people stabbed.

Four people were located inside the residence when police arrived on scene, three of whom were injured. The Quincy Fire Department and Brewster Ambulance both responded to the scene as well, provided aid to the injured and transported them to local hospitals.

"The latest updates provided are that all involved did not suffer life-threatening injuries and were released from the hospital," Keenan said.

The suspect fled the area but has been identified and will face charges in Quincy

District Court, the chief said. The initial investigation by detectives indicates multiple persons were stabbed, but no one was shot.

The initial investigation also indicates the address was specifically targeted, Keenan said, and "there is no active or continued threat to the area."

The investigation by the department's Bureau of Criminal Investigations remains ongoing. Anyone with information regarding the incident is asked to email the department at qp-dinfo@quincyma.gov.

How To Support Local Businesses When Ordering Out

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Need lunch at the office? Don't have time to stop at the grocery store? Feeling too tired to cook? Food delivery apps make ordering from a nearby restaurant easy. However, the cost may be higher than you think—especially for small, local restaurants and their delivery drivers.

These tips can help you understand how delivery apps work and what you can do to support your favorite local restaurants when ordering out.

How to support local businesses when ordering out

- Understand how take-out apps impact restaurants. Third-party delivery apps may seem simple—you order food, the restaurant makes it, the third-party app delivers, and you pay the fees for an additional service. But the process isn't that straightforward. You don't see the high commissions restaurants pay to use these services. Some delivery apps charge restaurants 20 to 30% or even more. While revenue may grow for local restaurants through these apps, their profit margin will likely shrink. It's not a sustainable business model for most mom-and-pop eateries. In addition, some companies behind these services have been called out for deceptive sign-up tactics and questionable marketing practices that cut into restaurants' profits even more.

- Think about delivery drivers. Delivery drivers need to be treated fairly in this arrangement, too. These gig-economy apps generally offer drivers a minimum payout for each delivery they take on. Plus, they get your tip, right? Maybe, but maybe not. In the early days, many delivery apps used tips to make up the worker's base pay—meaning it went to line the company's pockets instead of your driver's. Public outcry on social media caused most companies to change that practice, but not all yielded. To ensure your driver gets their tip, research how your app handles tipping or set aside some cash instead.

- Watch your budget. If you plan your expenses with a budget, you have a specific amount allocated for food and eating out. Keep in mind that using delivery apps could cut into that budget significantly. The New York Times reports that buying a meal through a delivery app can be up to 91% more expensive than simply going to the restaurant or picking up your order.

- Look for better deliv- ery alternatives. Delivery apps are one of many ways to get food from your favorite restaurant delivered to your doorstep. Many restaurants still employ delivery drivers. In this case, ordering directly from the restaurant will save you money and give that local business much-needed support. You can also search for delivery apps with more sustainable systems in place. Some new apps ask you (and the restaurant) to pay a flat fee, enabling restaurants to keep 100% of their profits on each order. Always check BBB.org for ratings before ordering from any new business.

- Support local restaurants when you can. Often, local restaurants feel pressured to use third-party delivery apps and up their prices to cover the additional expense. Supporting local restaurants by ordering directly from their website and picking up your food can make a huge difference for a small business. In the long run, it can help them keep their prices down, which saves you money too.

Remember the true cost of using third-party delivery apps next time you want to order in. If you don't need a delivery, visit the restaurant in person to support a local business.

QPS Music Programs Continue To Reach New Heights

More QPS Music Students Accepted to Prestigious Festivals

The Quincy Public Schools would like to recognize the accomplishments of the following students who were recently selected to participate in the Massachusetts Music Educators Association (MMEA) Eastern Junior District Festival on March 10-11th at Lincoln Sudbury High School.

North Quincy High instrumental student Justin Zhao (bassoon) and Quincy High instrumental student Nathan Aronoff (tenor saxophone) participated in the district concert band. North Quincy students Alvin Nikolla (flute), Alan Li (violin), as well as Quincy High School instrumentalist Owen Vieth (French horn), were selected to participate in the Orchestra.

Quincy High School Junior Choir students Nathaniel Baryza (bass) and Joshua Ferrini (tenor) as well as Central Middle School students Anya Healy (soprano), Joshua Chen (bass), Kaelen Griego (bass), and Kyle Solano (bass) were all selected to participate in the district's mixed choir. The Festival included select high school and middle school musicians from 30 Eastern Massachusetts cities and towns.

To be accepted into the MMEA Eastern District Festival, students are required to prepare musical scales, an assigned vocal or instrumental solo, as well as demonstrate their sight-reading skills. Every step in this process is evaluated by judges from around the state and only the top-ranking musicians in grades 7-9 are accepted.

High School Choir teacher Joanna Compitello said:

cepted to regional and state festivals this year, and it has been very exciting to watch! The growth of the music department as a whole has opened up a lot of opportunities for our students, and they have proven to possess not only the musicianship, but also the personal responsibility to seize these opportunities. The music selected for these festivals is not easy, and students only get one day of rehearsal as an ensemble before the concert.

"We could not be more proud of the students for their hard work, dedication, and how they represent the Quincy Public Schools' Music Department both in and out of school."

Mrs. Compitello served as the coordinator for this year's Eastern Districts Junior Festival, and was responsible for organizing almost 400 students from 30 school districts who participated in four different district ensembles (Concert Band, Orchestra, Jazz Band, and Mixed Chorus).

Mr. Christopher Boel, who teaches music at Central Middle School, had four of his 7-8th grade Central Middle School Choir students make the Mixed-Chorus District ensemble this year.

3 QPS Bands Earn Silver Medals At Statewide Festivals

Over 230 ensembles from over a hundred school districts in the state recently performed at six different locations in the statewide MICCA Music Festival. Bands, choirs and orchestras from all over Massachusetts spent the weekend performing for nationally recognized judges and teachers.

Quincy high school band students participated in the MICCA-sponsored concert band festival at Danvers High School, the second time they attended this prestigious competition. The QNQ Symphonic Band – led by Mr. Matt Cavanaugh, and the QNQ Wind Ensemble, directed by Mr. Michael DeMarco – were both awarded silver medals. Last year they attended the festival for the first time as one combined band and received a bronze medal.

“This year we decided to split the band up into two smaller groups: one group by audition and the other to highlight the younger students,” said DeMarco, QPS Systemwide Music Department Chair and Director of the Wind Ensemble. “This afforded us the opportunity to put less experienced students into leadership roles in the Symphonic Band and to challenge our more advanced students in the Wind Ensemble by performing more challenging repertoire. We are very pleased with the growth of our band program with this new model

There will be a citywide band concert on May 30th at Quincy High School that will feature the All-City Middle School Chorus, All-

City Middle School Symphonic Band, as well as both the QNQ Symphonic Band and Wind Ensemble.

Commissioner Joe Shea, Rep. Bruce Ayers Receive National Elks Awards

Norfolk County Commissioner Joseph Shea and State Representative Bruce Ayers were recently presented with Outstanding Service Commendations from the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent & Protective Order of the Elks.

The awards, which are given at the national level, are in recognition of "dedicated service to the lodge and community." Both Shea and Ayers were nominated for the awards by John Connor, past Exalted Ruler of the Quincy Lodge of Elks #943.

Commissioner Shea, a member of the Elks for 55 years, has been involved in many of the organization's charitable projects. For over 40 years he has helped coordinate the Elks Christmas basket distribution, helping provide holiday meals, to countless people in need.

"The Elks is a unique charitable organization which, in small ways and large ones, improves the lives of people in our community, often with very little fanfare," Shea said. "It is a group I am proud to be part of, and I am grateful to Exalted Ruler Connor for the unexpected and kind recognition, especially alongside a selfless civil servant like Bruce Ayers."

Representative Ayers, who has been a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks for over 35 years, has overseen the lodge's scholarship program for over two decades. He is also involved with the annual Hoop Shoot competition.

"I'm honored to receive this award from the Elks Grand Lodge, and am appreciative of Past Exalted Ruler John Connor for nominating me," Ayers said. "I'm especially grateful to be recognized alongside a great guy

Although the Presidents took an early lead, the Raiders shined as the set progressed.

The Presidents took a 2-0 lead on an ace from Justin Dinh. However, the Raiders fought back. The Raiders tied the set at six apiece and went on a 9-2 run, putting the set out of reach for their opponent.

A serving error against the Raiders gave the Presidents the points and the ball back, but they weren't done yet. Liam Bailey had back-to-back kills for the Raiders, extending their lead to five points. However, Christian Las responded with a kill for the Presidents. After that, the Raiders had a 3-0 run started by a kill from Bailey; he also capped off the set with a kill. The Raiders won the first set 25-15. Bailey finished the game with a team-high 11 kills, while Chiu finished second with 10.

The second set was similar to the first one.

Jake Basan put the Presidents up 6-5 on an ace, but the Raiders took the lead and never relinquished it shortly after. The Raiders went on a 5-0 to take a 10-6 lead. Ben Walinjom's kill tied it at six apiece, and the Raiders took a one-point lead on a Presidents hitting error. After that, a block got them a point, and an ace from Gavin Yu put them up by three. Plus, Walinjom made it 10-6 Raiders by getting another kill.

From there, the set was competitive. However, there was little variance in the Raiders' lead. They led 20-14 lead in the set and capped it off with a 5-1 run. An ace from Bailey closed out the

Raiders Roll Past Presidents In Softball

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High softball team had a strong performance in its rivalry game last week.

The Raiders faced their in-city rival the Quincy Presidents, and were sharp at the plate, in the field, and on the mound. The Raiders won the game 21-1 after five innings due to the Mercy Rule. With the win, the Raiders improved to 2-3 on the season; with the loss, the Presidents fell to 0-5.

The Raiders were dominant in the first inning. Starting pitcher Thea Bandzak was sharp; she pitched three innings and did not allow a runner to reach base.

In the bottom of the first, the Raiders' offense exploded. It scored 14 runs.

Mary Saccoach walked, then stole a base. Cady Hansbury knocked her in with a double to right center field. The next batter grounded out but advanced Hansbury to third base. Then, Hansbury scored on a passed ball. After that, Caroline O'Donnell hit a double down the left-field line and Gianna Bassett singled to right field. Avery Abrahamovich knocked in a run on a sacrifice fly, and a pair of walks loaded the bases. Avery Wood was hit by a pitch, driving in a run. After that, Marybeth Smith knocked in a two-RBI single, a batter walked, and O'Donnell had a two-RBI single to left field. Barrett hit an RBI single, and Abrahamovich knocked in two runs as she reached on an error.

Additionally, Bandzak singled up the middle for a run, and Saccoach scored on a fielder's choice where every runner was safe.

The Raiders' offense continued to shine in the second inning. O'Donnell, Bassett, and Abrahamovich each walked, loading the bases. Bandzak had an RBI single, Wood got hit by a pitch that scored a run, Saccoach reached on an error and knocked two runners in, and Hansbury and Keira Murphy each had RBI singles.

The Raiders also added a run in the bottom of the third.

The Raiders pulled Bandzak from the mound after three perfect innings. Maureen O'Brien pitched the final two frames.

Against her, the Presidents got some hits. Bridget Hoare got the team's first hit of the game, legging out an infield single. Hailey Concannon singled up the middle, and Beth Chetwynd hit an outfield double. However, a different runner was thrown out at third base, ending the inning. In the top of the fifth, the Presidents also had two batters reach base. Bridget Colleton drew a walk, and Alex Hoey-Ventura singled to right field.

Since the Raiders were technically the home team in this game, the game ended after four-and-a-half innings due to the 12-run

Mercy Rule.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD — Adam Sandler has become the Netflix darling after completing his ninth film for the production company. Last month, he received the Mark Twain Prize for American Humor presented by the Kennedy Center just in time for the release of "Murder Mystery 2," co-starring Jennifer Aniston. Making the sequel for "Murder Mystery" was murder for the pair. Sandler admitted that he had to have a hip replacement, telling Variety, "I had been doing so many movies in a row. I did 'Spaceman,' and I was hanging in a harness all the time. I kept saying, 'Something's going on with my hip, man. I'm in trouble.'" "Murder Mystery 2" director Jeremy Garelick confirmed, describing some of his stunt work as "Tom Cruise kind of stuff." Sandler bemoans, "I'm sluggish, man. My body hurts... I didn't think I needed to get in shape before the movie, but then when we were shooting, I was like 'Man, I should have gotten in shape.'" Aniston wasn't immune either. In what was the final day of shooting, she admits, "I had a back injury about three years ago, and it got really pissed off when I was in the harness... It was one of those things where you wake up the next day or two days later, and you're like, 'Wow, that got bad!'" Up next, Aniston will be in an untitled comedy with Julia Roberts, and her series "The Morning Show" has been renewed for a third season. She and Sandler are planning another film together — which they want to be a drama.

Robert Downey Jr., no longer Iron Man after the last "Avengers" film, has set his sights on remaking Alfred Hitchcock's 1958 James Stewart and Kim Novak classic "Vertigo." But, first, we'll see him in the $100-million "Oppenheimer" film (with Cillian Murphy in the title role of the father of the atomic bomb). It also stars Emily Blunt, Matt Damon and Rami Malek, and arrives July 21.

Nicholas Braun, two-time Emmy nominee for playing Greg Hirsch in the HBO series "Succession" (in its fourth and final season), has already completed the psychological-thriller film "Cat Person" (based on a New Yorker magazine story), with Emilia Jones and Isabella Rossellini. It's awaiting a distributor.

Netflix is back with its resurrecting again. They're now reviving the 29-season "Power Rangers" franchise into a new series titled "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: Once & Always," with returning members Karan Ashley, David Yost, Walter Jones and Catherine Sutherland. It drops April 19.

Jennifer Lopez didn't let her marriage to Ben Affleck (married on July 16, 2022) slow her career down. She's completed a pair of films for Netflix. The action-drama "The Mother," co-starring Joseph Fiennes and Gael Garcia Bernal, is due May 12, and the sci-fi thriller "Atlas," opposite Sterling K. Brown, is coming soon. Since she's now Jennifer Lopez Affleck (which means a "field of stone" in Scottish), dare we say they're stone cold in love?

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Arts and Crafts — Arts and Crafts furniture was in style from the late 19th to the early 20th century. It was very different from the ornate styles of the earlier Victorian era. It had the advantage of new tools and mass production. The Arts and Crafts movement promoted skilled craftsmanship, quality work and simple, sturdy shapes. Iconic Arts and Crafts and Mission workshops, like Stickley and Roycroft, are known for their simple furniture made in dark oak with little ornamentation. This doesn't mean that every Arts and Crafts piece is a plain, heavy box!

This umbrella stand, which sold for $300 at a Selkirk auction in St. Louis has a light, intricate look. However, its design uses straight lines and simple geometric shapes. Its ball feet create a sturdy look; and, as an umbrella stand, it was made with use in mind.

Q: I found an old electric toaster from the 1920s at a flea market. I am using it as a decoration in my kitchen. What is the history of toasters?

A: Toasting bread with electricity and not over a fire was made possible in 1905, when American metallurgist Albert L. Marsh developed a nickel-chromium alloy he called "Chromel." It was low in electrical conductivity, infusible and resistant to oxidation, which made it the perfect metal to shape into filament wires and coils for heating elements. In 1908, General Electric patented its own nickel-chromium alloy that contained iron. It was called "calorite." In 1909, GE introduced its D-12 bread toaster, invented by Frank Shailor, which was a commercial success, 19 years before the invention of bread-slicing machines in 1928. Over the next 100 years, toasters were made of metal, wood, porcelain and Bakelite. The value of a vintage toaster depends on its rarity, aesthetics and the design of its electrical and mechanical works. We are amused by a toaster twice as long as others that toasts the bread by sending it through the long toaster instead of popping up.

TIP: Save your broken dishes, vases and other decorative china to make mosaic stepping stones or tabletops for your garden. Chipped vases can still be used for flowers or turned upside down to make toad homes.

• Ever wonder why garlic is so anathema to vampires? One theory goes that it's an antibiotic, and since vampirism was often thought to be a disease, it was harmful to them. Another holds that it was believed to repel mosquitoes, and since they're both bloodsuckers, vampires would be repelled as well.

Now here's a tip! by Jo Ann Derson

• When packing cookies in a single layer, I trace the shape of my container on parchment paper using the lid as a template. It's pretty easy, and it fits exactly.

• Keep a small wastepaper basket or shredder near your entrance if possible. You can get rid of paper items you don't need (think, junk mail) before it even makes it into the house. This is especially important if you tend to let things pile up, like I do! — R.F. in Louisiana

• For scratch paper, I use the back side of my kids' extra art pages. We choose the best to display, then they chop up the rest into small booklets, which they staple at the top. And we have notepads! — M.L. in Iowa

• Keep a map or globe in your family or TV room. This way, when a place is mentioned on the news or in another program, you can find it on the map. This is a great thing to do with kids, but it's handy and worthwhile for anyone. — via email

• If you have a very stinky trash can, scrub it with a paste made from baking soda and just a bit of water. It works as a mild abrasive. Then fill a spray bottle with plain white vinegar and spray. It should foam for a moment. Let it sit for about 10 minutes, then rinse well with hot water. Clean and deodorized!

• We have large buckets that store random toys on our back porch. It seems that whenever we'd touch the buckets to get a toy, a horde of mosquitoes would erupt. There's no water, so we didn't know what to do. And we didn't want to douse it with chemicals, as it's filled with kid stuff. A neighbor suggested we put a few dryer sheets in each one, and they really have worked. I guess the bugs don't like the smell! — W.S. in Florida

Q: I heard that Marvel was making another Avengers movie. I thought they were done after "Endgame." Who is going to star in this one? — G.I.

A: "Endgame" certainly seemed like a nice way to conclude the saga of the "Avengers" superheroes — and villains. But fans are clamoring for more, and Disney is giving them what they want. In fact, there are actually two more "Avengers" movies in the works: "The Kang Dynasty," which is scheduled for release May 2, 2025, and "Avengers: Secret Wars," which is slated for May 2026. According to DigitalSpy.com, "Secret Wars" will wrap up what is known as the Multiverse Saga, but there are other sagas planned for years and years to come.

As for the cast, Jonathan Majors' Kang the Conqueror, from the recent movie "Ant-Man and the Wasp: Quantumania," will likely star in "The Kang Dynasty," but other Marvel characters joining Kang are uncertain at this point. Robert Downey Jr. is done as Iron Man, and Captain America is now being played by Anthony Mackie instead of Chris Evans. Brie Larson's Captain Marvel is said to be taking over as "the lead of the MCU," according to DigitalSpy.com, so I would imagine she'll appear as well. There's plenty of Marvel content in theaters and streaming on Disney+ while we await the next Avengers adventure. On May 5, "Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3" premieres in theaters, in what director James Gunn calls an "emotional journey." This is Gunn's last Marvel project, as he's now the new creative head at DC Studios.

Q: I'm really hooked on "The Night Agent" on Netflix. Will there be a second season, or is it a one-off series? — C.H.

A: "The Night Agent" is based on a novel of the same name by Matthew Quirk and has quickly risen to the top 10 of current Netflix shows — and that's without any big names in the cast. According to IMDb, the addictive plot centers on an FBI agent who "works in the basement of the White House manning a phone that never rings — until it does — propelling him into a conspiracy that leads all the way to the Oval Office." It stars Gabriel Basso ("The Big C") and Luciane Buchanan ("The New Legends of Monkey"), whose chemistry is a big part of the show's appeal. The show was actually renewed for a second season just days after the first one was released on Netflix. Having a talented supporting cast, too, certainly doesn't hurt. Recent Oscar nominee Hong Chau ("The Whale") and D.B. Woodside ("Lucifer") are two standouts.

Q: When is "Manifest" returning, and will this be the last season? — B.S.

A: "Manifest," a series about a group of plane crash survivors who suddenly reappear after being presumed dead for years, premiered on NBC in 2018. It was canceled by the network after three seasons, but became a big hit when reruns were picked up by Netflix. Viewer support led to a fourth season of new episodes on the streaming service, the first half of which premiered in November 2022. The last and final 10 episodes of the series will launch on Netflix beginning June 2.

Can Cats Eat Easter Eggs?

DEAR PAW'S CORNER:

We were coloring Easter eggs a few days ago, and our cat Jake kept begging underneath the table. Now that we've got lots of leftover boiled eggs, I'm wondering if it would be safe to mix a few into his food? — Sarah L., Panama City, Florida

Dear Sarah: Because they're hard-boiled, it's completely safe to feed some egg to Jake. Just remember to peel the shell off first! Eggs are a healthy protein that cats can eat. The American Veterinary Medical Association recommends that they always be cooked. Feeding raw egg to a cat can make it sick due to the potential for bacteria or other pathogens that are on the shell to transfer to the egg. Whether the cooked egg is boiled, scrambled, poached or microwaved doesn't matter. Don't add seasonings to the egg, though. Salt, pepper and other spices can upset a cat's small tummy.

If you've never fed eggs to Jake before, only give him a small amount at first. Add a teaspoon to his regular food or to the side of his dish. Monitor his behavior after he eats the egg. If he has an allergy to eggs, he may scratch excessively, act agitated or throw up. If he seems fine, you can give him more next time.

Here's a cool finding about eggs and cats: Researchers at Purina reported in 2019 that coating a cat's food in a special egg powder formulation helped stop people from having an allergic reaction to cats! A protein in cats' saliva is responsible for 95% of cat allergies in people. Not surprisingly, Purina has developed an entire product line of cat food based on this finding, called LiveClear. So, if you suffer from allergies around cats, this might bring some relief.

"Ghosted" (PG-13) — Who doesn't know what it's like to be ghosted nowadays? Cole Riggan knows. After a successful date with a woman named Sadie, Cole is reeling and thinks he can see a real future with her. But Sadie has plans to travel to London for work, and when she leaves, Cole doesn't get a single text back from her. Still determined, however, Cole travels to London to meet her there. Once he arrives, Cole suddenly gets kidnapped and taken to a mysterious lair, where none other than Sadie rescues him. After Sadie reveals she's in the CIA, he realizes he might've bargained for more than he thought on this trip. Starring Ana de Armas, Chris Evans and Adrien Brody, this rom-com action film premieres April 21. (AppleTV+)

"Dead Ringers" (TV-13+) — Based on the 1988 film starring Jeremy Irons, this psychological-thriller miniseries premieres April 21 with six episodes all in one shot. Gender-flipping the roles originally played by Irons, Rachel Weisz plays both roles of Elliot and Beverly Mantle, who are identical twin gynecologists. Elliot and Beverly share everything — their occupations, their drugs, their lovers. And now, they share the same goal of expanding the boundaries of medicine, by essentially creating a baby out of science. The deranged twins must be careful where their ambition leads them, though, as there are eyes watching their every move. (Prime Video)

"The Diplomat" (TV-MA) — Kate Wyler is the new U.S. ambassador to the U.K., and her first crisis to solve takes her to London, right as a strike force inches closer to the Persian Gulf. With an imminent threat looming closer, Kate must play her role as diplomat very carefully if she wishes to succeed — and keep her husband. Hal, a former ambassador himself, from intervening in her career. This eight-episode series starring Keri Russell and Rufus Sewell can be compared to Netflix's recent release "The Night Agent," with tons of action, drama and politics. But the casts' performances, combined with hard-hitting dialogue, elevate the series to an entirely different level. (Netflix)

Chris Evans and Ana de Armas star in "Ghosted."

"The Fallout" (R) — Jenna Ortega ("Wednesday") and Maddie Ziegler ("Dance Moms") star in this heartfelt drama film centering on the aftermath of a high school shooting. Vada (Ortega) meets Mia (Ziegler) in the bathroom on what's supposed to be a normal picture day when a shooter appears on campus. The panicked pair hide in the bathroom, along with another student and are able to narrowly escape the shooter. During the weeks following the shooting, Vada and Mia form a close bond as they grapple with what happened at their school. Although this film is on the shorter side, Ortega and Ziegler's true-to-life portrayals are stunning and give insight to the difficulties that can arise after such a traumatic event. Out now. The bidding:

East South West North
Pass 2 NT Pass 3 NT
Opening lead — king of hearts.

Assume you're West, defending against three notrump. You start by leading the K-Q-10 of hearts, declarer winning the third round with the ace. Your partner played high-low to the first two tricks and followed to the third, so apparently he also started with four hearts.

South now leads the A-Q of clubs, and you properly take the queen with the king. This is because there's no holding possible with which you could gain by ducking the queen, but there are some holdings South could have where you could lose by ducking.

East's jack falls on your king, indicating that declarer has the ten, which is blocking the suit. It is at this point that you should be very careful about what you do next. For example, if you cash your nine of hearts, South will discard his ten of clubs and easily score nine tricks.

But resisting the impulse to cash the heart nine at this juncture is not good enough. Given declarer's opening two-notrump bid and what you can see in your own hand and dummy, it is a virtual certainty that if South is allowed to score four club tricks, he is sure to make the contract.

And so, in an attempt to cut him off from dummy, you should shift to the king of diamonds! If you make this play, South goes down one; if you don't, South makes the contract.

While the king of diamonds is admittedly an unusual play, this doesn't mean that it is impossible to find. On the contrary, you have all the information needed to justify it. It is true that declarer might have a hand where he can make the contract no matter what you do. But it is also true that the king of diamonds is the only play that gives you a chance to defeat the contract when it can be defeated.

Cipro Prescription No Longer The First-Line Treatment For UTIs

DEAR DR. ROACH: I was diagnosed with a UTI on my yearly physical urinalysis, but I had no symptoms. I was prescribed Cipro. The five pages of warnings attached to the prescription scared me! So, I checked the FDA and Mayo Clinic websites. Both said that the "risks outweigh benefits" and it "should not be the first choice to treat a UTI." But my doctor says to take it, so I will -- 500 mg twice a day for seven days.

Possible side effects include tendon ruptures (including the aorta), nerve damage and more. Scary! I am 71 and in good health with high blood pressure as my only problem, but it's under control. I wasn't told if my UTI is complicated or uncomplicated, but I assume uncomplicated, as my blood work, including kidney tests, were all normal.

Is this drug safe? Why does the FDA say not to prescribe this as the first choice? -- C.J.

ANSWER: There is a lot wrong here.

First off, asymptomatic bacteria in the urine does not normally get treated, so I wouldn't have recommended treatment in the first place. I'm not even sure why your doctor ordered a urinalysis -- it's not recommended as a screening test for most.

Second, I agree with your research that ciprofloxacin (Cipro) should not be the first-line treatment for symptomatic urine infections. Ciprofloxacin does increase risk of tendon rupture very slightly (three to four cases per 100,000 people treated); may damage the aorta (eight cases per 100,000 in one study, while another large study showed no risk); and may cause neuropathy in one case per 150,000.

Resistance to drugs like ciprofloxacin has been increasing. Other choices, like nitrofurantoin, trimethoprim/sulfamethoxazole or cephalexin, have more effectiveness with less risk of toxicity. That's why Cipro is no longer a first-line choice. But it can be hard for doctors to unlearn behaviors.

Usually, Cipro is effective and doesn't cause side effects, but practicing evidence-based medicine means changing behaviors to reflect new information, even if your personal experience has generally been good. An individual doctor isn't likely to see damage to tendons, aorta or nerves, but if all doctors changed their behavior, there would be even fewer of these rare events.

When it is used, a short course of ciprofloxacin is normally prescribed for three days, not seven, for uncomplicated urine infections in women. The less a person uses this drug, the lower the risk of these rare but severe side effects. Three days is normally sufficient.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I want to know how to reduce my blood pressure because it is currently 142/90 -- S.L.

ANSWER: Treatment of mildly elevated blood pressure of the type you have starts with lifestyle changes. The first thing is to try to reduce sodium in your diet. Some sodium comes from what you add to food, but much more is in pre-packaged foods, especially canned foods. Potassium, found in most fresh fruits and vegetables, has a beneficial effect on blood pressure, especially when sodium is also reduced.

Regular exercise can drop blood pressure by 3 to 5 points. Avoiding alcohol can reduce blood pressure as well. Excess alcohol -- more than one drink a day for women or more than two drinks a day for men -- is particularly likely to increase blood pressure, so cutting down or stopping helps reduce blood pressure.

Combining all of this advice can reduce the risk of requiring medicines by almost half. Additional treatments, such as meditation and stress reduction, further reduces blood pressure and the need for medication. However, some people, even if they do everything right, can still benefit from medication, which can reduce the risk of heart disease and stroke when appropriately given to patients.

Is AARP Membership Worth Having?

I remember feeling uneasy when the first AARP envelope showed up in my mailbox. It was one thing to quietly hit the Big Five-O, and it was another thing to realize that I was then eligible for membership in a group for seniors.

It took a little while, but I did sign up. Over the years I've stayed. The benefits are worth it. Here are a few:

I get a discount on my cellphone plan for having an AARP membership.

The list of benefits and discounts keeps growing, many of them local. Rental cars and travel, insurance of all kinds, flowers and groceries, transmissions and tires, paint ... and pizza.

There's the Smart Driver online safety course that, once you pass it, could save you money on your auto insurance.

The monthly newspaper, the AARP Bulletin, is worth reading for the information it contains: money, investing, senior news and events in my state, government affairs, Social Security and health. Then there's the bi-monthly AARP magazine, with a wide variety of articles, from dieting and money management to tests that predict cancer, places to retire and much more. The two publications are worth the $16 price of membership by themselves because of the information they present.

AARP has an app now with good instructions on how to install it.

If you sign up for AARP membership (the first year is reduced to $12), it will likely take a few months for your publications to start up. If you change your address, the same thing might happen, depending on where in the publishing cycle your change occurs. If you suspect something has gone astray, call them at 888-687-2277. Meanwhile, you can read both of them online at the AARP website: aarp.org.

What interests me the most today is the 25% off discount on a first order from Silver Cuisine by bistroMD, especially the low sodium meals.

4. Which artist wrote and released "She Bop"?
5. Name the song that contains these lyrics: "When you're all alone in your lonely room. And there's nothing but the smell of her perfume."

Answers

1. The Grass Roots, in 1966. It was released on the group's debut album of the same name. The song had been written for Herman's Hermits, who never released it, in favor of recording a different song.
2. Mr. Bojangles was a homeless street performer Walker met in jail. Bojangles had taken his name from another street performer born in 1878.
3. "Lazy Shave of Winter." The song was written and originally released by Simon & Garfunkel in 1966.
4. Cyndi Lauper, in 1984 on her debut album.
5. "Cry To Me," by Solomon Burke, in 1962. Although the song has become a standard over the years, it never rose above No. 44 on the Hot 100 list. It was included in the 20th anniversary edition of the soundtrack for "Dirty Dancing."

Vocal, Piano, Organ Charity Recital At Faith Lutheran Church May 6th

Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., Quincy invites the public to a Charity Recital on Saturday, May 6th, at 4 p.m. for the

Proceeds To Benefit Cambridge Church Damaged By Fire On Easter

Fire Recovery Fund of the Cambridge Faith Lutheran

Church, presented by Marcus Johnson, Baritone, with Joel Davidson, pianist, Chris Robins, oboist, and Nikki Ready, Soprano.

Program titled: "Music of the Moon" includes a mix of classical, American, and contemporary composers and follows themes of space, stars, time, and the thing that ties beyond them all: Love. Recital also features such favorites as "Fly Me to the Moon" and "All I Ask of You Medley" arranged by Marcus Johnson.

The public is invited to come and enjoy an afternoon of beautiful music and visit the church garden coming to bloom.

Marcus Johnson is a baritone classical vocalist, pianist and organist. He graduated from University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth with a Bachelor's degree in digital media and music. He studied voice under the tutelage of doctors Tianxu Xhou and Maryte Bizinkauskas and organ privately with Richard Bunbury, AGO Boston Chapter.

Johnson recently presented his concert on piano and voice performance at the Scandinavian Cultural Center in West Newton featuring Scandinavian and American favorites. He serves as a soloist at First Congregational Church of Fall River and sings in the Quincy Choral Society.

Joel R. Davidson, Esquire is a Milton Academy and Harvard University Suffolk Law graduate who specializes in social security disability and estate administration. He also serves as organist at the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Rockland, Massachusetts and as a Saturday organist at St. Ann by the Sea in Marshfield, Massachusetts, sings baritone with the Quincy Choral Society and with the South Shore Men of Harmony.

Chris Robins enjoys praying regularly at area churches such as Good Shepherd Lutheran in Quincy and New North Church in Hingham. He also plays in the Mayflower Chamber Orchestra each fall for their yearly concert. Chris works at JP Morgan Office in the Seaport district of Boston and enjoys spending time with his family in Weymouth.

Nikki Ready is a lifelong singer, dancer, and actress. Some of her favorite roles include: Lady Macbeth in Macbeth, Margot in 9 to 5, and Beulah in Orpheus Descending. When she is performing she finds joy as choreographer and a website manager/developer. Nikki is grateful to everyone who made this charity concert possible and to her family and friends for always supporting her theatrical endeavors.

All donations will go to the Cambridge Faith Lutheran Church Fire Recovery Fund, which suffered a terrible fire in the steeple during Easter. For further information contact: johnson.marcus.alan@gmail.com.

AAA Northeast Releases Inaugural Environmental, Social And Governance Report

Aims To Achieve Net-Zero Carbon Emissions By 2045

AAA Northeast is setting a goal of reaching net-zero carbon emissions by 2045, as detailed in its first Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) Report.

"AAA Northeast's responsibility is to our members, the motoring public and to the communities in which we live and work," said John Galvin, CEO, AAA Northeast. "Our first ESG report communicates our progress to date on key ESG-related priorities and our ambitions for the future. As we continue along our ESG journey, we will evolve to meet the needs of our members, employees, and communities to have a positive environmental and societal impact."

The report highlights how AAA Northeast is focused on an electric future by reducing diesel-powered vehicles from its fleet and replacing almost 20 percent of light-service vehicles with electric vehicles on order – an action initiated in 2022. AAA also launched an electric vehicle website to help inform consumers interested in learning about electric vehicle ownership. The report shares AAA's ongoing commitments to diversity, equity and inclusion, as well as the work done to support communities both financially and through employee volunteerism. The organization's ESG commitment also extends to continuing to conduct business ethically, protecting member and employee information and acting with integrity in all AAA does.

AAA Northeast has further pledged to its ESG journey by establishing several goals and ambitions:

Environmental:

- Eliminate all diesel-powered vehicles by 2024.
- Purchase only electric vehicles for light-service use by 2030.
- Utilize 100% renewable energy by 2035.
- Achieve net-zero carbon emissions by 2045.

Social:

- Continue to actively support the communities within the AAA Northeast territory.
- Cultivate a workforce that is representative of the communities AAA Northeast serves.

- Provide best-in-class benefits to support employees inside and outside the workplace.

Governance:

- Continue conducting business ethically, protecting member and employee information and acting with integrity.

MA House Passes Comprehensive Tax Relief Package

dependent in FY24, $455 per dependent in FY25, $600 per dependent in FY26, and $614 per dependent in FY27. This change will cost $165 million in the first year of implementation and $487 million when fully implemented in year three. It is expected to impact over 700,000 Massachusetts families.

Estate Tax

Massachusetts is currently a national outlier on the estate tax, as the Commonwealth is one of only 12 states that impose this tax and has the lowest estate tax exemption threshold in the country, along with Oregon. The bill increases the estate tax threshold from $1 million to $2 million, and eliminates the "cliff" effect, taxing the value of the estate that exceeds $2 million, and not the entire estate as the law currently requires. This is expected to cost $231 million per year.

Senior Circuit Breaker Tax Credit

This bill doubles the Senior Circuit Breaker Tax Credit from $1,200 to $2,400. This change is expected to impact over 100,000 taxpayers who own or rent residential property in Massachusetts as their principal residence. This will cost $60 million per year.

Rental Deduction Cap

This bill increases the rental deduction cap from $3,000 to $4,000. This is expected to impact about 881,000 Massachusetts taxpayers, and cost $40 million per year.

Short-term

Capital Gains Tax

Massachusetts is among the states with the highest short-term capital gains tax rate, which is currently 12 percent, and taxes short-term capital gains at a higher rate than long-term capital gains, which are currently taxed at 5 percent. The bill lowers the short-term capital gains tax rate to 5 percent, and phases in that change over two years. During year one, short-term capital gains will be taxed at 8 percent, before ultimately reaching 5 percent during year two. This will cost $67 million in year one, and ultimately cost $130 million annually, starting in year three of its implementation.

Single Sales Factor Apportionment

Currently, most businesses in Massachusetts are subject to a three-factor apportionment based on location, payroll, and receipts. To make Massachusetts more attractive to multi-state companies, this bill establishes a single sales factor apportionment in Massachusetts based solely on receipts, matching what 39 other states currently do. This change is projected to cost $115 million in year one, and ultimately cost $79 million annually, starting in year two of its implementation.

Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC)

This bill increases the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) from 30 percent to 40 percent of the federal credit. This is expected to impact about 396,000 taxpayers with incomes under $57,000, and will cost $91 million.

Additional Reforms

In addition to tax relief, the bill changes Chapter 62F of the Massachusetts General Laws, which triggered nearly $3 billion in taxpayer refunds in 2022. This law requires that excess revenue be returned to taxpayers when tax revenue collections in a given fiscal year exceed an annual tax revenue cap. Currently, the credit is applied to the personal income tax liability of all taxpayers on a proportional basis, resulting in higher credits for those who paid more in taxes. The bill passed last week adjusts the credit to an equal amount per taxpayer, rather than a rebate based on a percentage of what taxpayers paid the Commonwealth.

The bill also adjusts the Stabilization Fund cap, which currently requires that if the amount remaining in the fund at the end of a fiscal year exceeds 15 percent of the budgeted revenues and other financial resources pertaining to budgeted funds, the excess funds must be transferred to the Tax Reduction Fund, which would then be transferred to taxpayers through one time increases in the personal exemption allowable against income tax liability. The bill adjusts the cap to 25.5 percent, which allows the Commonwealth's savings account to retain more funding.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives approved the bill 150-3 and it now goes to the Senate.

Preparing, Maintaining Your Landscape For Spring

In honor of Arbor Day, now is the time to start tending to your trees and landscape to set them up for success.

Spring is a great time to give trees the extra TLC they need to make it through the rest of the year. These tips from The Davey Tree Expert Company ensure your trees are prepared for spring and the coming years. Regular tree maintenance can make a world of difference when it comes to a tree's health.

Improving and caring for your spring landscape goes beyond just increasing the curb-appeal and aesthetics of your home. Many studies have concluded that a well-maintained landscape can increase home value by up to 12%.

According to arborist Brad Gould, an ISA Certified Arborist® at Hartney Greymont, a Davey company, here are some recommended actions to take to make the most out of your landscape and ensure success for your trees this spring:

• Inspect trees and shrubs. Most trees are leaf-ing out and flowering in spring. If one area is looking sparse, this can signal a problem. Often times when a tree is stressed, branches die from the top down. Tree stress can be caused by pests, diseases, drought, soil compaction or root issues. Consult a professional arborist to determine if removal and/or pest and disease treatments are necessary. By regularly inspecting your trees, homeowners can be made aware of issues before they become too serious or detrimental to the tree.

• Prune dead, diseased or unsafe branches to give trees a clean, fresh start on the season and promote even more growth. Clean up, unsafe, broken or hanging branches that were damaged by winter weather. Any pruning that cannot be managed from the ground should be handled by a certified arborist. Some species should be avoided in the spring due to threat of disease or pest infestation from open pruning wounds. A certified arborist knows what trees to prune and when to fix health risks. Have a certified arbor-ist inspect any trees that you feel are unsafe or at risk of falling.

• Plant new trees.

Spring is one of the best times of year to plant new trees and shrubs. More importantly, choose to plant trees native to the Boston region. This will help create habitats for wildlife, provide food for pollinators, and enhance the native ecosystem. Gould recommends planting an American elm, Massachusetts's state tree. The American elm will withstand weather conditions in Boston and provides ample shade.

• Mulch secures the organic matter trees need beneath the soil surface, conserves soil moisture, protects roots, and controls weeds. Apply 1-2" of shredded hardwood or leaf mulch. But don't over mulch the tree or "volcano" mulch. Keep the mulch two to three inches away from the trunk, or the trunk will rot.

• Fertilize. Before your trees and shrubs enter peak growing season, apply a slow-release fertilizer to replace nutrients and improve resistance to disease, insects and stressful weather.

As trees are waking up from winter dormancy, they are very much alive, but need a helping hand to thrive once temperatures rise. By employing preventive maintenance, cleanup, and general preparedness now, you can put the wheels in motion for a bold, smooth transition into spring.

Ask your arborist for recommended methods to care best for the trees in your landscape this spring and summer. To schedule a free consultation, contact Gould's office or (866) 489-8310 to learn how to care for, protect and enhance your landscape in every season.

10 Tips to Help Job Seekers Launch A Career, Get Noticed And Achieve Early Success

Recent college graduates preparing to enter the workforce as well as anyone returning to work following military service, child-rearing or a pandemic-related furlough will find an abundance of wisdom in Fast-Starting a Career of Consequence: Practical Christ-Centered Advice for Entering or Re-entering the Workforce, the new book from former president of New York Life Insurance Company Fred Sievert.

"I believe you have achieved a 'career of consequence' if you have identified your calling and your passion, you have identified your spiritual gifts, and you're using those in the workplace," Sievert said.

In the book, Sievert shares five biblical principles chosen to help individuals create a strong foundation for fulfillment in their careers. Then, he elaborates on 10 practical and proven strategies that individuals can implement immediately to gain visibility and early success as they enter the workforce for the first time, move to a new company or re-enter the workforce after a period of absence.

"The advice applies equally well to small or large corporations and to entrepreneurial ventures," he said, adding, "The book was inspired by a request for advice from my daughter on how to be identified as a high potential employee and advance her career as she languished in an entry-level position at her large global company. The advice proved to be very effective as she was rapidly promoted into positions with greater levels of responsibility."

Chapters explore universal career-relevant topics such as: Demonstrating Commitment; Embracing the Company's Vision and Mission; Developing Cultural and Organizational Awareness; Understanding the Financial Underpinnings of the Business; Demonstrating Strategic Thinking Capability; Over-preparing for Every Meeting; Making Every Presentation a Command Performance; and Balancing Faith, Family and Career.

Sievert drew upon his unique combination of experiences as a Christian executive, a mentor and a college instructor to develop a book packed with practical Christ-centered advice for those wishing to add a spiritual dimension to career pursuits.

"During my career, and afterward, I mentored many young employees and executives — at least 10 of whom went on to become presidents or CEOs of their organizations," Sievert explained.

Ultimately, Sievert hopes to show others the value of nurturing a symbiotic relationship between faith and career.

"Since most of us will spend more than half of our waking hours at work, I really felt it was important to talk about ways in which you can bring and follow biblical principles in the workplace, and at the same time, get some really valuable business tips from a guy who's been there," he added.

City Realty Group Hosts Ribbon-Cutting, Tours for Modernized 1515 Hancock St.

City Realty Group (CRG) recently hosted a ribbon-cutting and led tours of its recently renovated commercial building at 1515 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

CRG acquired the 132,000-square-foot, Class A office building in 2021. Since then, CRG has performed renovations and improvements, including a revitalized lobby with stadium seating and spacious common areas for tenants and visitors.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony was attended by Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, Quincy Chamber of Commerce President and Executive Director Tim Cahill, and several building tenants. The event was catered by new tenant Magic Bowl, which is known for its high-quality superfood acai bowls.

"We came in and did an extensive renovation to frame the building into a more modern context. That led to our tenants being very appreciative and new tenants starting to come to us, and we started to sign-up a lot of new leases," explained CRG Managing Partner Stephen Whalen. "We're no longer fifty percent vacant. We are getting to the point where we feel we will be one hundred percent full in the next nine months. That's not the story for a lot of these types of buildings in Massachusetts or the United States right now."

Anchored by long term tenants such as the Social Security Administration, and MassHire Quincy Career Center, the building at 1515 Hancock Street has been a fixture of Quincy's bustling commercial district for decades. CRG intends to make this reimagined commercial building a cornerstone of the revitalization of Quincy Center.

"Stephen and the City Realty Group have a great vision for this building, and I welcome the investment and reinvestment in Quincy Center," Mayor Koch said. "We moved into a difficult period in Quincy Center for a long time, but through the investment by Stephen and so many others around him, Quincy Center is back."

"It's back in a robust way and a different way. Quincy Center is an active, vibrant downtown once again. Downtown, particularly for Quincy, really is the heart of the city. Families now come downtown and enjoy eating, walking, and feeling good with nice looking buildings, clean open space, and lovely parks to enjoy. I thank City Realty Group for believing in Quincy and hopefully we'll have some more projects to work on together."

Hancock Center (1515 Hancock St.) is a 4-story atrium building featuring street frontage on 3 sides, providing views, ample natural light throughout and outdoor patio space to select offices. this iconic building which will continue to serve as a cornerstone of the amazing evolution of Quincy Center.

Quincy Chamber of Commerce President and Executive Director Tim Cahill said that the new and preexisting tenants will have a lot to look forward to in Quincy's downtown.

"It's vital for us in the business community to have some commercial office space to get more people downtown," said Cahill.

"Hopefully we'll open-up some more lunch places now that there's people coming back to work. These types of eateries in commercial spaces are more important than ever. We just got approval for our beer garden, which will be across the street on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, starting May 18th. The farmers market will also be back in the same spot in June. We're excited that this building has been modernized and will be a source of pride in the heart of Quincy Center."

City Realty Group plans to continue investing in and modernizing Quincy's downtown. However, it's important to CRG that they connect with the communities they invest in.

"Thank you all for inviting us into the city. We feel a part of it now. Our nonprofit City Kids is looking to do more in the city," Whalen told the gathered guests. "If you have programs that are focused on kids and learning please get in touch with us. We'd love to pick that up because we feel when we do business, we want to give back. That's part of how we approach life and business."

Quincy To Dedicate Memorial Square To Staff Sgt. Robert Phillips

Ceremony April 27 At Corner Of Lansdowne, East Squantum Streets

On Thursday, April 27th the City of Quincy Department of Veteran Services will hold a ceremony at 12 noon at the corner of Lansdowne Street and East Squantum Street to recognize and remember Staff Sergeant Robert Phillips who died in Vietnam.

Bobby grew up in North Quincy and later moved to Ohio. On his second tour of duty in Vietnam he was captured and held as a prisoner for almost a year. He managed to escape, but was caught and eventually executed.

Because his family had moved out of Quincy his name was accidentally omitted from the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower at Mariner Bay. Through the efforts of a number of people his story unfolded and his name was inscribed on the Clock Tower at last years Vietnam Memorial ceremony. His is the 50th name of Quincy natives who are honored on that Memorial.

As is the tradition in Quincy, a memorial plaque is placed on top of a street sign near the boyhood residence of those killed in action. The ceremony is open to all who would like to remember and honor Bobby's sacrifice and bring some closure for his family and friends.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Concert April 30

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will perform a Classical Concert I Sunday, April 30 at 2:30 p.m. at the Quincy High School Lloyd Hill Auditorium, 100 Coddingtown St., Quincy.

The orchestra is conducted by musical director Yoichi Udagawa. The concert will feature Impresario Overture, Mozart; Variations on a Rococo Theme, Tchaikovsky; and Caleb Graupera, cello, Symphony No. 8, Dvorak.

Graupera is excited and honored to be performing with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra as the winner of the 2023 Eleanor B. Nelson Young Artist Concerto Competition. At an early age, Caleb began his musical career on the marimba, the national instrument of Guatemala, and he was drawn to the cello through his school program at the age of 9. As a soloist, Caleb was first prize winner of the American Protégé International Concerto Competition, leading to solo performance at Carnegie Hall, and as winner of their 2022 Youth Concerto Competition, he performed Tchaikovsky's Rococo Variations with the Brockton Symphony last week.

Caleb is also passionate about ensemble playing, having served as principal cellist of the Boston Youth Symphony, MMEA Senior District, Rivers School Conservatory, and Weston High School orchestras, in addition to participating in the All-State Orchestra and Jazz Band.

As a chamber musician, Caleb is a proud member of Boston BEAM and the Project STEP Honors Cello Ensemble, regularly performing at Symphony Hall and the Shalin Liu Performance Center, with a recent appearance on The Kelly Clarkson Show.

During the summer, Caleb has attended a number of festivals, including the Boston University Tanglewood Institute, New England Conservatory Summer Orchestra Institute, and Sphinx Performance Academy, which culminated in a performance at Morse Hall at the Juilliard School. Most recently, Caleb was selected for the National Youth Orchestra's NYO2 program, the younger of the two national orchestras sponsored by Carnegie Hall's Weill Music Institute, and this summer, the orchestra will embark on a tour of the Dominican Republic.

Outside of cello, Caleb has enjoyed serving as class president throughout high school, and director of the worship ministry at his spanish-speaking church. A strong believer in the transformative power of music to effect social change, Caleb is inspired by the work of El Sistema, and he is interested in pursuing a career in arts administration. Caleb is a junior at Weston High School, and currently studies cello with Emmanuel Feldman.

The QHS auditorium is ADA accessible and free parking is available. Quincy High School is located near the Quincy Center MBTA Red Line station.

me at that time during my undergraduate years. I never spoke in public, never wore heels, never did talent or anything, so she said, 'hey Kim, I think you should go into pageantry.'" Campbell recalled in a recent interview.

"The first pageant I did was in my undergraduate college, which was a college campus pageant. When I entered it was 33 girls my first time. I ended up winning – winning talent, interview and then the overall title. From then on I started doing smaller pageants within the area, because I really loved it and I really loved how much it has helped with my public speaking, my self-esteem, because I never dreamed I ever would be on stage just speaking in general.

"So it started from there and from then on it just blossomed into me going into more pageants from then on."

Prior to being named Ms. Petite New England, Campbell was chosen Ms. Petite Quincy. The competition in New Hampshire pitted her against representatives from city's from around the region.

"For New England Petite, before we go to the state to compete for a larger title like the one I have now, we're appointed city titles. They prefer ladies who are in the city because they are from there, they know the city and it's best for them to really promote it. I submitted my application, they reviewed it and ensured that no other person within the city has that title, so when I submitted my application they said 'hey, you're qualified' and I ended up getting it," Campbell said.

"You had Quincy. You had Boston, Worcester. They start us off by representing the city and then we go on to the state, which I did, and you competed for the bigger title which is either Ms. Massachusetts or Ms. New England."

As Ms. Petite Quincy, Campbell attended a number of events, like the grand reopening of the Dunkin' Donuts on Southern Artery. She said she liked being able to learn about the city's history and being able to share it with others.

"I never knew that the history here was so big. I went to the Church of the Presidents – I didn't even know that we had presidents that were buried there. So for me it was just to see how rich the culture is in Quincy and for me to go out there and share that opportunity, like creating reels on social media and everyone who is not even from Massachusetts is stating they want to come to Quincy right now because they never knew about the history and how strong it was here. That was really an eye opener for me," she said.

"The other one was just like going to Star Market and everyone was like, 'hey, Ms. Quincy, I remember you, I saw you at the Dunkin' Donuts.' I was like wow just seeing my impact and everyone wanting to come up to me and finding joy in how much I'm sharing the history of Quincy with everyone."

Overall, 44 competitors took part in the competition in New Hampshire. Campbell and 11 others faced off in the same division for the Ms. New Petite New England title.

"For this one there is no talent in it, but they are really big on community service. There is on-stage introduction, where you just say your name, your title. Then there is swimwear. For my division, we compete in swimwear. The other divisions...they compete in activewear," Campbell said.

"So, I completed an introduction, which is on stage, swimwear, evening gown, and then there is a personal interview where you're able to sit with the judges."

Now that she's been crowned Ms. Petite New England, Campbell said her schedule is starting to fill up with events around the region.

"Now that I have the state title, so far I was the red carpet host a Boston charity fashion show for Boston Children's Hospital just last week. Last week Saturday I was on 88.5 FM radio station," she said.

"For me now it's more media appearances and with this title I'm able to go to all the other New England states. I'm looking forward to traveling beyond the borders of Massachusetts and learning more about New England and what this amazing territory has to offer."

Campbell currently works as a school counselor in a nearby school district. She began working there in 2018, first as a behavioral aide and then as a counselor.

"I love it," Campbell said of her day job. "I tell everyone once you love what you do, it doesn't feel like work. I love going there every day. You will never hear me complain about being tired or wanting a day off...I really love it. I love working with kids, I love being in the school system in general."

As Ms. Petite New England, Campbell said she wants to spread awareness about mental health.

"As a mental health counsellor, it's just for me to go out there and let everyone know that mental health does not discriminate. It really does affect everyone," she said. "I just want to destigmatize what is referred to as mental health and seeing a therapist and just let everyone know nothing is wrong with seeing a counsellor. We all do it. I'm a counsellor and I also see a therapist. It's just to let everyone know that I'm human, we're all human, and it's really a good thing for you to go out there and get help."
